I remember a while ago saying I had 10mbps and would next year too.

I was wrong. Next year, I'm going to have 100mbps. Amen for free upgrades.

Upload's only around... 90 or so...

My college is a major fiber hub and is a part of all that Internet 2 business some of you may have heard about. In fact, we have so much fiber, we're giving it away! Physically; I have a roll of 500 yards of fiber in my room right now that I'm sure I'll find a use for one day; it was some of the leftovers.

lol, "kilobit". I remember when I used to use those. The upgrade hasn't yet occurred, I'm still only running an upload of around 7-9mbit.. The upgrade is supposedly going to be multiplying upstream/downstream by ten without any additional cost as part of a network renovation.

The guys in the network operations center are the arrogant ones. They watch everything they comes in and out of our computers...

It's just like "Big Brother"... but they can act more like "Little Brother". And yes, they can see this too.

Ah, Internet2. drool

Do you have any idea as to when it will be released to us non-university people? Perhaps within the next 10 years or so?
