He is showing us that it's possible to take a picture, resize it and place it on a Gameboy looking thing.

IF that would be reality, why would you see in-game and the menu at the same time? The one should have the game and the other the radar and in-game info like ammo etc.

.bmp is evil!

The bottom screen would be good for showing images of the weapons/items you got so you can poke the one you want to switch to, and the HUD stuff like the radar and current weapon.

Just a little optimization with the effects and texture sizes and Renegade could be played on the PSP... The current Renegade models are already low detailed enough for it.

Well I am very glad he did it because until now, I didn't know it was at all possible!
