I though it was time to start a new topic since the old ones both had over 50 replies and close to 100. As you know I used a template from clantemplates.com, I think, and it has the login area in the upper left hand corner of the page. I had downloaded a number of scripts, one in particular works great, but I dont know how to get it to use the original art from the template. Does anyone have a login script that I can use that wont get rid of the blue textboxes and stuff? I really need a script. Thanks if you can help.

That did not help, could someone take a look at my webpage and see where the login area is? And then look at the source code and tell me what to do? Could somebody lend me a script? From a preson directly?
