Last year's one was better (placing ads in major newspapers for jobs at their "new moon facility") - it was actually quite convincing.

ROFL! I actually believed it until I got to the "press F3 to request a new shotgun replacement" part. Man, I wish they actually did add the CT shield.

I knew it was a joke from the start. I mean, an update being released on APRil Fool's Day? Especially with those types of updates.

Bmw did one about new voice activated driving system, and how it used to screw up if the driver turned around to shout at the kids! I was horrified they might actually do this, and when I saw the date on the newspaper (the Telegraph too..) I knew straight away. Still quite horrified at the thought of using one of their "front armrests" until I get used to the idea of there being no steering wheel...

I think this is what gave it away, and if it didn't to anyone well , yea.
