AircraftkillerI respect the Reborn team. They, like one other team, have actually implemented new vehicles, structures, and infantry that look almost Westwood quality.

Then again, one could say the same for A Path Beyond or RenAlert...

I personally wasn't a fan of RenAlert, because the gameplay didn't really appeal to me too well when I played it, and of course, some of the Dev team aren't on my favourites list...

I don't plan on playing A Path Beyond either, since I probably won't get Battlefield 2.

I did enjoy playing the first beta of Reborn, although the bugs were annoying. The General gameplay was good, even though there were big balance issues and map bugs/exploits. I do look forward to the next beta, and I hope the team manage to do well with the gameplay, as I think that its not just how the units look, its mostly the gameplay since thats the biggest part of the game, in my opinion.

For one who just wants to play the game, that's fine. For one who has a future career in the business, it's not.

Both mods don't have high scores when it comes to interacting with/in the public. I have never played either of the two mods, or any modification made for this game at that. I only judge my decisions on what I do see, and what I do see is bad. Bad, bad, bad.

When I see topics like this, I wonder. When I see the other parties chime in with the same behavior, I wonder more. I wonder where this is all going - probably right down the toilet.

D6 isn't exactly the most public-friendly modification either, and it's not really a bad thing because most are not anyway. The ones that do end up being public relation successes are usually the ones that have enormous player counts and huge communities behind them.

If it were up to me, I'd rather we not have a public image at all. I'd rather have a finished product first. A few screenshots here and there, and the occasional heads up is fine, but I will never go along the paths of other modifications where every single new item or alteration to said item is broadcast simultaneously to its completion or stepping-stone acquisition. Quite frankly, I hate having to deal with the public - it's just one more thing to constantly monitor and worry about. Having 100% of my attention focused to what is most important - the game itself - seems far more practical than wondering if Joe Smith likes my new model or texture. That's just poorly-managed timed.

Like I said, I never tried any modification - I have only seen what they have shown me in such places as this. And from what they have shown me, I don't care too much for most of them. If they had not shown me anything, or even bothered acting the way they have here, I wouldn't have a negative opinion on them. Heck, I wouldn't even have an opinion on them, as I would probably not even know they exist. However, if they had come at me for the first time with a finished, or partially finished product, that not only looked and sounded appealing, but also had high standards and high regards, I would have been blown out of the water. You bet I'd be downloading it and trying it right away. It may have had a chance, but it was blown the minute that said team publicly dehumanized one of the other modifications or acted in a similar piss-poor manner.

If you don't show the public anything, very few people will be interested in what you do. It's a necessary evil to deal with moronic individuals unless you make it mandatory that all responses to updates are not to be posted.

I don't really care if anyone is turned away from bashing Reborn. I think that's a bad excuse to not like something. If you bash someone's work, it shouldn't be a factor in whether or not their own work is worth playing or looking at.

You can show the public something, but you shouldn't show them everything, and you shouldn't show them something every other day. No corporation follows this trait; when they decide to have a press release, it usually includes minimal details and showcases. No studio in their right mind would tell everybody everything they are doing and show them everything they are making. By the time the game is done, they will know every inch of it. What would be the point in buying the thing if you already knew all the surprises?

Know that I wasn't directing my opinion on any one party, but everyone in general. It's fine if you don't care, but do know that others are turned away from it, and it will only hurt in the long run.

"No I haven't, I know for a fact I can't be bothered" click "Hehe"

Funny how there are 2 almost identical topics here, but the one most responded to was started by a certain you know whom...

The public image of these two games are nothing short of fking disgusting. I have actually tried to play these two games purely to see if they were actually as bad as made out here, and when I asked about it the people involved appeared to be more interested in slagging off the "other team" than getting me to play their game. Are you lot only "making" Reborn/Renalert in order to have a multitude of arguments? I say "making" because I've seen no evidence that such games actually exist. Yeah I've seen a mod here and there, but I've seen that for Renegade.

My opinion is that they both suck because they've not been finished yet (when they are pm me and I'll get them both and play them), some (not all) of the development teams suck because of their childish niggling, and anyone else who have to make stupid, lame and half-arsed attempts at "xyz sucks, omg" suck because if you're going to bother insulting something, at least do it properly!

 - You can find a crappy beta with major bugs, but I am not involved in that one and so I won't support it.
 - I hope to release this during the summer anyway, I can't do promises. I have exams to pass but University is almost finished. So for sure: In 2005, we will release Reborn.

What's your fantastic game that blows reborn out of the water then? Has it been made yet?

Just comes across to me like a few 5 year olds arguing about who's dad could win in a fight, when they're orphans... It just irritates me seeing all these people who mouth off and have nothing to back it up. Just like all these so-called Chavs (scumbags who need shooting to make the world pretty much crime free in my opinion) who are really hard until you approach them, on your own, to beat up 8 of them. The only difference between that and what Aircraftkiller (to name but one person btw) is that he's actually forming an argument back and while I have respect for that, there is still nothing yet to back up the mouth.

But if you really insist on saying reborn sucks, we all know, don't.

Quote: It just irritates me seeing all these people who mouth off and have nothing to back it up. Have you even seen their work? It's been a year since their last release, and even that one was broken, buggy, and downright ugly. They didn't even finish the damn installer, you had to create your own folder and unzip two seperate zip files into it. They promised (Read that again, promised) that the first release would not be in beta and it would be a bug free release. Guess what, it wasn't. It sucked and they fooled a lot of people into thinking it wouldn't suck

It's been nearly a half a year now since the "new team" said they were going to release a new version of Reborn. Well... here we are, a half a year later and still no release. They are still "working" on the release, but yet, there is not even a single sign of it be let out anytime soon.

Their team consists of nothing but procrastinators and pathological liars. They promise all kinds of things but never deliver.

Quoth the Steppo:

Steppo wrote:

Quote:Ah, where to begin. Ladies and Gents, this mod can easily be said to have the same issues as say... Daikatana and Diablo II combined.

Allow me to explain.

Let's start with first trying to get it to run. Step-by-step.

- 1.) Download Installer which doesn't work due to a runtime error, and when it does, it only serves as a cheesy media player showing a ripped off TibSun intro (Not even compressed well, btw.).
- 2.) Download files for installer and extract them manually into the directory that the false insaller created.

Now, let's take a moment here to analyze the situation. I just downloaded an installer that, when it actually FUNCTIONS, is supposed to stream the files (Not unlike the fantastic Steam idea </sarcasm>) to the proper areas, yet you recieve the file not found error. So, you are required to download the files that go WITH the installer separately.

Now, prudence suggests that you do one of two things. Either A.) Don't release Reborn until this streaming installer is fixed or B.) Use a working installer, complete with all the files a la RenAlert. The Reborn team chooses to do neither and instead expects the average joe to be able to do this manually.

But, I digress, let's continue.

3.) You are now required to IGNORE the shortcuts installed by the non-working installer (Which i will now refer to as Crap Media Player, or CMP for short.) and instead explore to your installed Reborn directory (C:\Program Files\Reborn is the default, for those who don't know) and run "Game.Exe" manually.

OK. Let's analyze this... On second thought no... it's not worth the aneurism.

4.) You are now greeted by the "Deezer Studios" intro.

Deezer Studios? Ok, let's just say that again. "Deezer Studios". What's the first thing that comes to mind when I say that? That's right, good ol' Deeze. I'm sure he LOVES being subliminally referenced to this piece of crap. (For reference sake, Deeze is THE MAN and deserves much homage for the mods he has created in the past.)

That and the mere FACT that this group tries to refer to itself as a sort of Dev Team is scary enough to make grown men cry.

5.) You are now FORCED to watch an equally poorly compressed rip from the ol' TS intro.

WHY? Was your CMP not good enough or something? No wait, that's because it SUCKS!

6.) At long last, the menu system. Now here's something that actually WORKS! If I click Multiplayer, I go to Multiplayer!

Yeah, and if I click "Westwood Online" i go to... WHAT THE HELL? I can't log in! Oh yeah, that's right, cuz it doesn't WORK! Ok, no worries. Let's try GameSpy... OH NUOS! NOW I'M SENT TO THE RENEGADE SECTION! Let's think of that for a sec. The Renegade section in GameSpy Arcade refers SPECIFICALLY to c:\westwood\renegade. NOT c:\program files\reborn. Shit outta luck there, my friend!

Oh! Wait, there's instructions! "How to play on Gamespy." COOL!

1. Download "The All-Seeing Eye" from <http://www.udpssoft.com/eye2/index.html>
2. Install "The All-Seeing Eye"
3. ASE will detect your Renegade and set your gamepath
4. Open ASE -> hit F2 -> click on "games" -> click on "Renegade"
5. Use the browse-button to search for the Game.exe of Reborn and press OK

Now just wait a fucking second. If i wanted to play on ASE, i would have looked for "How to play on ASE" Right? But once again, we're happily baited and switched into using ASE (Which i personally hate, tyvm.). This kinda reminds me of Valve's Steam... though I can't imagine why...

OK, so I can't play on WOL, I can't play on GSA... and I'm sure as hell not installing ASE. So let's just humor "Deezer Studios" and play Practice Mode... just for laughs.

HOLY FARKING CRAP! I used to be a beta tester for Reborn Back in the day... and there are STILL many of the bugs left behind!

Bury yourself in Canyon... DIE. Big bug, if you ask me.

Reborn plays background music... sounds like... wait it IS... it's Crush from Red Alert! Yeah, let's just kinda cross titles there...

Deployment is STILL a useless gesture in the game.

Fly high enough and you'll end up UNDERGROUND! It's not a bug, it's a feature! NEWTON BE DAMNED! "What goes up.... eventually comes around on the other side!" It's a whole new idea of physics!"

OK, now that Reborn's site is toast and a simple html site is remaining. Let's have a looksee at what one (I'm thinking Angel of Dawn... though I could be mistaken) of the Reborn team is saying.

"But today is the long promised day X."
Oooh... Day X... top secret there...

"If i am honest, i never imagined that Reborn will become a playable game... "
Reality check, it's NOT PLAYABLE! And if honesty is so important to you, then you shouldn't have promised a "Non-buggy" game that will support ALL game browsers.

"Sadly our installer has not been finished"
Which leaves us to the question of wtf happened to the rest of it...
If the game doesn't even install, then it shouldn't be released. Period.

"Reborn was in the beginning small and unimportant"
YES! And now we upgrade it to LARGE and unimportant! Hell, let's just add broken to the list.
"Large, broken and unimportant." Yeah, that's about right...

People, this game was supposed to be IT. The one game (Besides RenAlert) that was to help me regain my faith in Renegade as a game and as an engine. Well... i guess it's up to Ack, Dante and the RenAlert crew, because Reborn has gained my vote of "Most likely to cause violent suicide."

Reborn.Sucks.Period.

</rant>

Jzinsky, try finding out why we bash Reborn before you start showing how much of a newbie you are. I've been here since the beginning of these forums back in 2001, and have seen Reborn go from being somewhat good to sucking horrible... Yet dumbshits like you will come out of nowhere, with little information to substantiate your claims besides "WELL U CANT DO ANY BETTAR!!!" and defend something that is indefensible.

I always wondered why you based Reborn so much (seriously... I've never played it), but never got the courage to ask you since you seem to favor bashing people more than anything else.

But thanks. Now I know.

bigejoe14They promised (Read that again, promised) that the first release would not be in beta and it would be a bug free release.

Excuse me, I need to correct you.

- I joined the mod in january 2004. It was like dead at this date. We really started the new version on april 2004. I never did those promises. 'Promises' you are talking about are from Reborn team of 2003. I never said any promises.

- Who is still on the team from 2003 and 2002? Kalle Bowo. What does he do? 2d art. He wasn't really involved in the bugs of the last reborn release.

- You are still talking like other above about something you don't know and haven't tried (new reborn under work, let's call it Reborn2005). Or you talk about RebornBETA2003...-> learn that nobody of the current team except Kalle Bowo (for icons and 2d arts) is involved in the release of 2003.

So you can't say you don't know now.

Reborn is still Reborn, which includes all "good will" (or lack thereof) associated with it. This is why when a company goes bankrupt because they screwed over their consumers and got sued is not picked up by someone else to run.

If you didn't want This Reborn to be associated with the previous Reborn, you shouldn't have called it "Reborn", or still produced/developed by the same "Deezer Studios", or have the "Past helpers" section.

Why do you get so much flack from people? Because it is the SAME MODIFICATION any way you look at it. Both called Reborn, both produced/developed by the same studio, with acknowledgement to the people who used to work on it.

vloktboky wrote on Mon, 16 May 2005 16:30 If it were up to me, I'd rather we not have a public image at all. I'd rather have a finished product first. A few screenshots here and there, and the occasional heads up is fine, but I will never go along the paths of other modifications where every single new item or alteration to said item is broadcast simultaneously to its completion or stepping-stone acquisition. Quite frankly, I hate having to deal with the public - it's just one more thing to constantly monitor and worry about. Having 100% of my attention focused to what is most important - the game itself - seems far more practical than wondering if Joe Smith likes my new model or texture. That's just poorly-managed timed.

Like I said, I never tried any modification - I have only seen what they have shown me in such places as this. And from what they have shown me, I don't care too much for most of them. If they had not shown me anything, or even bothered acting the way they have here, I wouldn't have a negative opinion on them. Heck, I wouldn't even have an opinion on them, as I would probably not even know they exist. However, if they had come at me for the first time with a finished, or partially finished product, that not only looked and sounded appealing, but also had high standards and high regards, I would have been blown out of the water. You bet I'd be downloading it and trying it right away. It may have had a chance, but it was blown the minute that said team publicly dehumanized one of the other modifications or acted in a similar piss-poor manner.

Exactly

So you can't say you don't know now.

Since the Reborn team doing the mod now is different from the previous team they shouldn't be held responsible for whatever crap the OLD team came up with. Also, Renardin, I see no reason why you are retaliating against Reborn-bashing comments? If you know they are bashing the old team then you are none of it, I mean. Bashing is just an opinion after all. You can completely ignore it.

I have seen what ACK exposed re: Reborn's lies or whatever it is called. Yes, the pictures looked down right horrible. (I can do a better map than that I guess.) However, that was long time ago and why not forget about it and move on?

No, I could not care less about this childish APB vs Reborn quarrel. I'm rather impartial if I say so myself as I don't comment both mods often (since I haven't played both of them on my own PC) but I am just stating my comment since this is Hot Issues forum.

Now please... shut up and mod!

Alright, since the OLD Reborn sucked so much, Renardin, why not RENAME the new one? To, say; Reborn: Renegade Sun? Note, that i know its a horrible name, but people wouldnt be calling it just Reborn. That would mean, obviously, that if they said: "Reborn sucks" that they would be talking about Reborn ONE. As opposed to this one, which, actually, is #2. Just say you botched the first Reborn and began to remake it, albeit not completely from scratch. Its not to smart to keep making a game youve(makers) released, that is a piece of shit. You shouldnt even THINK of doing that.

As a matter of fact, you shouldnt have even named it Reborn if you did decide to continue making it. Just, as i said, rename it. Try this: Renegade: Sun Flare

Again, i know it aint a great name, its just for reference. DONT EVEN INCLUDE "Reborn" IN THE NAME! WE will know its still Reborn, just made better, but it looks better then just keeping it named Reborn. If you have a small description about it, and it refers to the old Reborn, change it. Hell, try this: "As heroes rise from the First Tiberium War, both sides are readying their greatest forces." I know it aint great, but still. The very last thing you want, is to have bad shit said about Reborn when it hasnt even been released yet, and for everyone to say something along the lines of: "Well, UbErNo0b said that R3b0rn is teh sux0rs so i wont play it."

If you reply to this with something that basically makes you sound like a dumbass, Renardn, your an idiot. And a dumbass, because you sound like one.

One more thing to add: SHUT UP AND MOD!

Doesnt matter. It wouldnt have quite as bad press, because usually the second game is much better. It wont be the second game, but it might seem like it to some people.
