In the profile page I see that smilies are set to off in signatures. But, I see some people on the board with signatures that have smilies working on them.

Also, are we going to see that "disable smilies in topic" thing I asked some time ago?

Even if smilies themselves are disabled, but pictures are not, you can still have smilies in your signature.

yes, but the smilies in these signatures aren't references to other sites, they're from the smilies directory here. they're just typing "" or something, and the forum converts it to a smilie.

but whoever has them in their signature won't want to take them away. my point is there should be an option to disable smilies, period. I asked crimson over a month ago and she said the forum would need a mod.
