Okay, I moved my winamp up on accident, and the window just went, off screen. I mean off, nothing to grab and bring back. I've closed the window with right click and opeend back up, i can't find it. I've changed skins, i have no fucking idea how to get it back. Any help please?

Choose a higher resolution of your screen if you can, and you should be able to see it then.

#1 Try changing to a lower resolution, that may force winamp back on your screen and then just go back to the res you had b4.

#2 Also try Ctrl-D (make winamp double the size) and if you are lucky and it's on top or left you can see it and drag it back.

Edit:

#3 I just remembered I have a program that may do it 4 you. To use it just: start win amp, start my program, click on winamp in the text box(of my program), close/delete my program and winamp should now be at X/Y(300,300), now just move the winamp and it should also get all the other winamp windows to dock with the main window.

I doubt that, but it is worth a try.

I'm not behind a computer with winamp now. But I think I remember there is a configuration file in the root directory of winamp. If you move that one temporary somewhere else or give it a different name, Winamp will automatically create a new configuration file with default settings on startup. I remember using this with winamp2.

If my idea didn't work, just place the old cfg back.

Edit: Ok I checked, you should remove or rename winamp.ini.
