It would be better if destroying species through habitat destruction and overhunting were more comperable to choosing the right to not have children.

Abortion will never lead to the extinction of the human race, FYI.

But I guess that's just me.

Missed the point. The comic is dependant on what is defined by "life". If something is still undeveloped as is the egg in the comic, and is not deemed to be human/animal/living/whatever, then it should be fine to eat the egg. If it is not, becaus ethe animal wil eventually develop into the animal (as the character suggests), then the same wrong can be placed with human embryos as well.

If this cartoon shows the hypocrisy (which, in my opinion, it does not) of pro-choicers, should it not also show the hypocrisy of pro-lifers? Unless you abortion-clinic bombing types refuse to eat eggs on moral grounds, or something.

Well, that's what the comic is trying to say, but not what the real issue is. Environmentalists who protect species aren't interested in the moral issues of eating a developing embryo. It's about letting eggs develop to replenish the species. Which is not the issue of abortionists.

Additionally, ACK, how do you know tree hugger pinko commies don't support pro-Life positions? Maybe they're a sect of liberalism that does endorse anti-abortion. Because such a thing does exist. Maybe you're generalizing a bit too much. Because you are.

This has nothing to do with enviromentalists. It brings up the idea about "when life begins". Those eggs have the potential to become life (in this case, replenishing a near-extinct species), so the same could be said about any embryos, human or animal, endangered or not.

Oh sorry, I figured that since this cartoon and aborting human babies were so obviously incongruous (i.e. how does trying to stop a species from going extinct, compared believing humans should be allowed to abort their pregnancies make someone a hypocrite?), my comment wouldn't have to make perfect sense either.

When I said environmentalists, I meant species protecting people. And the cartoon wants to bring up the idea, but, as mrpirate says it, the two are "incongruous". Species aren't under the endangered list because there are more ethical reasons against eating them rather than other animals. It's so the species can be rehabilitated from Republican hunters killing animals to the point of extinction. It's not an issue of when life begins there.

"SFE" It's not an issue of when life begins there.

Yes, yes I'm afraid it is. Its a "Political" cartoon, not an environmentalist cartoon. That means Its trying to spread a "Political" message. The cartoon goes on to say that the eggs are just an undeveloped clump of cells that don't breathe, fly, or experience pain. This is what Pro-choice believers think is true of an Embryo. Stop trying to talk around the message intended please, its really pathetic.

Btw, in case you don't know, being a Republican and Being a Poacher are two different things.

I believe eggs are an undeveloped clumo of cells that don't carry out real functions of organisms until right before egress from the egg. I'm quite pro-egg eating, since I don't believe it is murder. Neither do I believe abortions before a certain point are murder, either. But that's not the issue of species protection. I'm not trying to avoid the message, I'm trying to say, straight up, that the message is wrong.

The point of the cartoon is to show that liberals will protect the destruction of underdeveloped endangered species (which are illegal to kill/hunt/etc...), but will not try and stop women from the destruction of underdeveloped human beings (which are illegal to kill).

But wouldn't you agree that the destruction of entire species and the destruction of underdeveloped fetuses created by the person who chooses to not have a child are different things?

By the way, in case you all don't know my stance on abortion, it is this:

I believe abortions should be legal because in some cases children have no place growing up and would be deeply underprivileged throughout their whole lives. I also believe abortions should be sparsely used, and as a last resort to failed contraception.

Nope. Life is life, regardless of whose life it is. If you are going to say that the "destruction of underdevelp[ed fetuses" is bad for one thing, then it applies to everything. There is no "life beings for animals at an eariler time than humans". If you are going to lable the eating of an endangered species as "killing" the animal, then the same thing applies to humans.

I'm not labelling it as killing the animal. I, personally, label it as killing the animal potentiante. Which is what needs to live to become an actual animal. That's the point of endangered species having protected eggs and such. Not because it's more ethical to not let them die. If that where the case, you couldn't buy chicken eggs at the store. But you can.

Oh, please. The cartoon that started this thread said exactly what it was referring to. The most it did subtly was link two dissimilar topics, which is no great feat. I personally believe no one can glean much humor from political cartoons unless you agree with what it's trying to say. The closest I've come is chuckling at one cartoon in the National Review.

"If he wanted to help the poor, he wouldn't have let all them illegal immigrants in for free"

So you want to close the boarders, or put a price to get allowed into America and have freedom?
Thats very anti-liberal of you.

You just denied your own point, He lets the (we'll pick for this example) Mexicans into America for free and your against that? I thought you wanted people to be able to get out of poverty? They're looking for a better life, they're damn hard workers. He's allowing them to come here for free, and letting them make minimum wage when they get here (some cases this is broken and paid less, but this isn't a perfect world). Guess what, that minimum wage is a hell of a lot of money to them, its a start. From that leap, they can go on and do great things in our Nation they most likely could have never dreamed of in they're native nation. If thats not helping the poor I don't know what is.

Now before you respond to this, please use the new little spell check feature its great, and lets not forget to see if our sentences are comprehend able too.

Im not poor, and its due to my father not being lazy and me not being lazy. Probably the same for cowmisfit. If your lazy(and I see a lot of people who are) you won't go anywhere in life. America shouldnt have to feed you, feed yourself. Always been my motto.

If your family is extremely rich, you can be as lazy as you like and live a life of luxury, whereas if you're born into a poor family and can never afford to get an education it's going to be rather tough to make a lot of money.

Do you have any idea how many different kinds of scholarships and ways to get the money to go to college there are? Just because it would be harder for you than another doesn't mean you shouldn't try.

trying to maintain. I wish he would realize though that he's set. He can't get reelected anyhow, he should follow his morals and act.

You mean stalled by the 10 filibusters in both of Bush Jr.'s terms?

cowmisfitIts not his fault if your rich or poor, get off your lazy ass and get a job. In America they're are no poor people, only lazy. You have all the doors open to you, try your best, work hard and you can have anything you want in our nation.

Clinton proved that poor people aren't poor because they are poor, it's because there aren't any jobs for someone with an average intelligence. 90 IQ isn't much for the average person, and if there aren't enough easy store jobs open, they're not going to be able to get a job without a degree. Sure, some people are lazy, but very few. Try living on no money for a year and then tell me that you honestly believe all people without jobs are just lazy and don't want one.

But I suppose I'm the stupid one for not believing Republican talking points where they alienate their own party.

cowmisfit(some cases this is broken and paid less, but this isn't a perfect world)

The whole point of Bush's immigration policy is that immigrants can come in and get paid less than the minimum wage so his big company farmer friends can have what amounts to slave labor, farmers who have no representation, don't really exist in the country, and can't leave their situation because of a lack of economic options.

BTW: I saw the impossible today. A Republican Texas Represenative [Ron Paul] taking an anti-war stance on C-SPAN. Guess his mind drugs wore off.

Which is what needs to live to become an actual animal. That's the point of endangered species having protected eggs and such. Not because it's more ethical to not let them die. If that where the case, you couldn't buy chicken eggs at the store. But you can.

And all I'm saying is that the exact same mentality applies to all potential living things, be them endangered or not. I'm not even talking about the ethics involved, or, as this thread revolves around, whether or not abortion is wrong. All I'm saying is that the same definition of life is to be applied to everything, and not changed based on how a particular group feels about a specific subject. That there is hypocrisy at its finest.

I'll restate what I previously said in a slightly different way, perhaps that will explain it better. If you are going say that destroying the egg of an endangered species is wrong because it stops the potential life of something, then the same mentality has to be applied to humans/chickens/whatever as far as what the definitaion of life is. Not whether it is right or wrong to do the act, but what "life" is defined as. Then, from that definition, it can be argued whether or not the act is something good or bad; be it human life, california condor life, or chicken life.

ANY person who isn't mentally retarded (not meaning as an insult) has the capacity to be successful, and at the very least, support themselves. My upbringing was shitty at best. My parents could barely afford school clothes, and I had to deal with physical and emotional abuse from both of my parents. But I decided I wasn't going to let that affect me once I was 18. If I can do it, anyone can. And I didn't work this hard only to have to support the slobs who made wrong decisions in their lives.

Either way Tom Tomorrow's cartoons are bland, uninteresting, and predictable. They always have the same message behind them. You can read any TT cartoon and know exactly what he'll say next. It's offensive, disgusting, and meant for people like you who can't think for themselves.

Quote:That's if you consider flipping meat on a shit-burner a "decent job".

Just a couple of things you can do with a High School Diploma:

If you're bilingual: A translator at a court. I forget how much it pays, but its way more than what the average teacher gets paid in New York City, and it's only a five hour or so a day job.

For everyone: Programmer. I know, it's boring to most people. But guess what? It pays good and you don't need a college deegree. This applies to most areas of computer related stuff too. As long as you know how to do it, you don't need a college deegree.

Also, being a garbage man is a "shitty" decent job. Not that I would consider it but, $60,000 a year for picking garbage here and there isn't something a "poor" person would pass up, and it sure beats the hell out of burgerking.

There are endless careers one can consider with only a High School diploma, but I'm not listing every one of them.

EDIT: And if you're talented well um...yeah.

8 Mile a cult classic ? 8 Mile is a classic piece of garbage and classic showing that America is going down the hill because of Rap Music, just look at how many kids even wanted to learn about some disgrace of a human being like Marshal Mather's.

Ever heard of Wal-Mart? That's how rich people screw poor people. Taking bigger profits and paying employees less, and cutting benefits, too. The fact that anyone would work at Wal-Mart attests to how poorly our economy is doing lately. I personally abhor shopping at Wal-Mart.

So the way you answer a question challenging your broad statement about all rich people is by going off on a tangent about Wal-Mart... and you expect us to take you seriously?

I'm not asking you how Wal-Mart is screwing poor people (yeah, providing them with a paying job and often-times store discounts is really screwing them over); you said all rich people got rich by screwing over poor people--I'm asking you how.

Are all rich people Wal-Mart execs? No, so your post has little to do with anything we're talking about.

Quit dodging the question and answer it.

How are rich people screwing over poor people?

omg waaaaay off topic (which liberals are wont to do when confronted with the truth.)

the point is, the comic is making fun of the fact that some liberals would have a hissy fit over the destruction of the eggs of endangered species because they see it as a future life even though many of these same people would not consider the destruction of a human (or human embryo)in the womb a big deal (because they don't consider it human life). A fine, subtle way to point out the hypocrisy ACK.

SuperFlyingEngi wrote on Mon, 13 June 2005 16:52warranto wrote on Mon, 13 June 2005 16:18Missed the point. The comic is dependant on what is defined by "life". If something is still undeveloped as is the egg in the comic, and is not deemed to be human/animal/living/whatever, then it should be fine to eat the egg. If it is not, becaus ethe animal wil eventually develop into the animal (as the character suggests), then the same wrong can be placed with human embryos as well.

Well, that's what the comic is trying to say, but not what the real issue is. Environmentalists who protect species aren't interested in the moral issues of eating a developing embryo. It's about letting eggs develop to replenish the species. Which is not the issue of abortionists.

Additionally, ACK, how do you know tree hugger pinko commies don't support pro-Life positions? Maybe they're a sect of liberalism that does endorse anti-abortion. Because such a thing does exist. Maybe you're generalizing a bit too much. Because you are.

Your idiotic point of view on life sickens me. Sometimes I wish your family had aborted you so I wouldn't have to put up with your shit. I find you to be the lowest form of life on this forum with total disregard for logic. Sometimes I wonder if your dad types your thoughts for you. j_ball430 wrote on Tue, 30 August 2005 09:59 You realize you just contradicted yourself, right? You're against abortion, yet you wish SFL's parents had aborted him?

Not necessarily.

For example, if a person is against "animal testing" but person "b" is being a dick, and person "a" replies with something like, "I hate animal testing, but i wish you were tested on to see what it felt like" That comment is out of anger/frustration. It does not mean he likes animal testing, same thing here with the abortion crap here.

Btw, wishing someone was aborted is extremely mean...i cant think of any other thing that would upset me more then someone telling me i was a reject/mistake or shouldve been aborted.

Now, i hate the idea of abortion, in my opinion its as good as killing a baby, how could a person (in his right mind) live withthemselves after performing/agreeing to an abortion? the idea to me is abosolutely ludicrous.

Ask yourself, wouldnt it be better to just give the baby up for adoption? there are willing PARENTS who would love a baby for their own maybe be cause they are having troubles of their own.

Hell, i think even up for an orphange is better then abortion, why? because at least then you gave the baby a CHANCE in life which all beings human or animal have the right to have.

When you take away a chance in life, you might as well be a criminal.

Its ridiculus how many teens/young adults get abortions mainly because they arent ready for a child/the responsibility (they kinda go hand in hand), well hunny, you should have thought about that the night you were horney and wanted some action.

Its called CONDOMS/SPERMICIDE/BIRTH CONTROL.

Final thought:

If your not ready for a baby, then dont have unprotected sex, use protection one way or another. When you chose abortion, you chose a topic that is felt by many, to be criminal and wrong. So remember to think things out throughly before you chose one path or another. From my home in Hamilton Ontario, Im Steven Parker, please take care of yourself, and each other.

That's completely the opposite context than what DarkDemin used. DarkDemin said he didn't want to put up with SFL's shit, so he wished he was aborted. In your example, you show that person "a" wanted person "b" to experience animal testing to see how bad it is.

Ask yourself, wouldnt it be better to just give the baby up for adoption? there are willing PARENTS who would love a baby for their own maybe be cause they are having troubles of their own.

Hell, i think even up for an orphange is better then abortion, why? because at least then you gave the baby a CHANCE in life which all beings human or animal have the right to have.

When you take away a chance in life, you might as well be a criminal.

Its ridiculus how many teens/young adults get abortions mainly because they arent ready for a child/the responsibility (they kinda go hand in hand), well hunny, you should have thought about that the night you were horney and wanted some action.

Its called CONDOMS/SPERMICIDE/BIRTH CONTROL.

Final thought:

If your not ready for a baby, then dont have unprotected sex, use protection one way or another. When you chose abortion, you chose a topic that is felt by many, to be criminal and wrong. So remember to think things out throughly before you chose one path or another. From my home in Hamilton Ontario, Im Steven Parker, please take care of yourself, and each other.

Better yet, only have sex when you want a kid.

Not necessarily.

For example, if a person is against "animal testing" but person "b" is being a dick, and person "a" replies with something like, "I hate animal testing, but i wish you were tested on to see what it felt like" That comment is out of anger/frustration. It does not mean he likes animal testing, same thing here with the abortion crap here.

Btw, wishing someone was aborted is extremely mean...i cant think of any other thing that would upset me more then someone telling me i was a reject/mistake or shouldve been aborted.

Now, i hate the idea of abortion, in my opinion its as good as killing a baby, how could a person (in his right mind) live withthemselves after performing/agreeing to an abortion? the idea to me is abosolutely ludicrous.
