Sounds like it can't connect to the RG servers and it's freezing as a result...but one of the coders will have to answer that for sure

Firewall problem? Are you sure you have a connection when trying?

hmm..if RG couldnt connect it would usually whine about firewall problems to you, I suspect the problem is something else..

but again i am not sure, wait for the coders to respond lucky you, my RG window is not even visable on my monitor, luckily it is set to auto-launch ren, or i would be stuck...

Not sure where it went but its as if its minimised, but windows claims its not

I also had that problem some time ago. I think the solution is solved if u maximise the window (full width, you know...) or just the other way around, cannot remember...

I also had that and when I maximised it, the problem got away and I could see the window.(I mean not only a white part but also the text etc.)

If RenGuard is not responding and showing a white window, it means there is some sort of firewall in the background which is preventing RenGuard to communicate with its network.

if you wait for about 4-5 minutes, it will eventually time out, and it should display an error message.
