Norton Antivirus has falsely detected CS: Source as a threat somehow and I want to get a different one.

So does anyone have any suggestions?

NOD32 is an excellent anti-virus, I love it.

Nod32 fast, and a overall good scanner.

Norton sucks, it leaves trough 70% of spyware/malware if it isn't more.

You shouldnt even need a antivirus, you should be able to handle these things on your own.

That being said i put SpyBot on my moms PC, and she hasnt asked me to fix anything in awhile.

GriSoft Advanced Virus Guard(AVG) Free Edition has yet to let me down and takes less resources than either Norton AntiVirus or McAfee Virus Scanner. But I'm outnumbered here, so I'd say go with NOD32.

NOD32 detects what AVG misses. I had AVG on my mothers PC, and they still had troubles with spyware, etc. After I put NOD32 on, they haven't had one problem since.

NOD32 is just too cute & cuddly for you to want to let it go.
