Not true. There is a way to add yourself to an ignore list for your own server if you use BRenBot, but there is no way I or any BHS member can override RenGuard's protection and ignore someone. We can only ban people from connecting to the network.

You can stop the message from appearing, just configure your files correctly...

Create a file called ssc_ignore.txt inside your BRenBot folder, then enter the name your cousin is going to use when in your server to it, then either rehash brenbot, or restart it.

It's their server, they pay the bill, they do the work. They have every right to cheat on it if they want. If it's a clan server and they chose to do that (xil *cough* xil) then it's their server and they can. Mean while all the smart poeple play lagit servers that don't suck.

well the only person im gonna add is my cousin cause whenever he connects to rg it closes renegade and i even reinstalled ren and RG and still or if it does connect it freezes when hes trying to dl the patch

So all i do is make a file called ssc_ignore.txt and add that into the BR folder and add his nick?

Apparently SSC_Ignore.txt has another function. I have heard that when playing on a server hosted on your computer you need to add yourself to the ssc_ignore so it works properly, not sure if this is accurate information? Just what I have heard.

ghost hasn't withheld information. RenGuard 1.04 will stop the exploit he knows about.

SSC_ignore.txt is designed because when you log into a server on your own LAN, your IP doesn't match the IP that RenGuard sees you using. Example, I would show up at 192.168.0.2 on my LAN, and 68.x.x.x to RenGuard. This would result in the RenGuard master servers telling BRenBot that I'm not on RenGuard. SSC_ignore.txt means that BRenBot skips checking you. It means you won't be kicked for not using it. However, if someone !rg's you, you will NOT appear on RenGuard. The ONLY ONLY way that someone is validated to be on our network is when they show up as "Crimsson is on <server name>". If you are "idle", then you are NOT validated as legit.

Well doesnt everyone know certain things like how to bypass RG and certain sites where to find the "hard to get cheats" (aimbots,radar hacks) and for the post crimson made i made that file and added it to my BR folder and added his name OXeonO911 and well it didnt work.

ghost, read what crimson said. RG skips checking people in SSC_Ignore.txt (ie it wont kick them from full rg servers or announce they may be cheating) BUT it will still say they are not on RG if you do !rg on them, unless they are actually on RG of course.

Crimson, does this mean that if you play on the same computer as your server, while connected to RG, it will still report you as not using RG when the !rg command is used? (just wondering because I sometimes host games on my own comp)

Not really, its not the computer thats banned, but your renegade CD key, so unless you use a different copy of renegade on your second laptop then you would NOT be able to play on it.
