Hey guy's recently I have been marked as noob.

I was wondering what it means and what effects it has!

I'm a good teamplayer (31 recs) and don't think I'm a noob, but who does think this of himself!

Can anybody explain what it is?

lol... don't worry man, it has no effect whatsoever. Its the opposite of recs. When you see somebody do something really noobish, type: !n00b playername reason and press enter. Too see all the people mared a noob in the server, type !shown00bs (i don't remember if its spelled n00b or noob)

You're more likely to be marked as a n00b when you can't spell the term right.

Until five morons come in and !noob the entire server, and you've got zero recs. God I'm glad they reset the recs.

Recs awarded by the bot are fine, but when someone n00bs you for using a tactic they disagree with (i.e. looping) it gets a bit ridiculous.

Is it my fault they can't watch their ass? I constantly check behind me insace someone has worked their way around.

What is this "looping" tactic you speak of?

Blazer wrote on Fri, 18 November 2005 01:18: What is this "looping" tactic you speak of?

It's a term used on sniping servers (often on Islands) for people that attack others from behind. It is also mostly used by people that don't have the skill to attack head on. Since it is a bit lame to attack people from behind on a server that is all about aiming skill, gets people pretty pissed most of the time. On the other hand, it is also a good way to get those annoying wall lamers...

So, you're saying that it's a noob tactic to shoot someone from behind? No matter what unit or tank they may have? No matter if they're destroying your base? No matter if they're defending their base and they're the only thing keeping your team from killing their base?

I think I was pretty clear on the fact that I am just talking about sniping servers. On AOW servers it is allowed, and in fact smart, to loop, refill, whatever.

Oh dear, I opened a can of worms.

My policy is if you can't watch your rear, thats where I will attack from. Sneaking around players un-noticed then sucessfully attacking them requires practice, and I much prefer it to mashing A and D and shooting wildly down a corridor.

Just a little bit of info, "looping" only because a Renegade term this year, before then people knew you had to watch your ass on the battlefield.

Besides, on islands you can see the opposite corridor, so it's easy to tell when someone is going to make it around. It's always smart to sneak up on your enemy, no matter what kind of server your in.

It is like an old western shoot out. Both should take 10 steps, turn and shoot. Loopers on the other hand take 5 steps then turn and shoot the other in the back... It is just honourable like refilling during battle.

Alright, so you're saying that when you have 0 ammo in all of your weapons except your pistol, and very low health and you're in the middle of defending your base, you shouldn't refill?

Have you ever been to a sniper server? The base can not be destroyed and you don't have pistols. It is just you, your sniper rifle with unlimited ammo and your opponent with the same. Do you know what honour means? It is the opposite of gay.

People who complain about looping in Islands "sniper" games aren't snipers, they're wall huggers... and they're dead wrong when they say it isn't allowed. If you are only capable of looking in one direction, there is something very seriously wrong with the way you play the game.

OMG what H4xx let you look in 2 directions at the same time?! You have 2 monitors or something?

Looking in 2 directions is no prob, fighting 1 guy in front and 1 from the back is a fight even the best can not win.

I agree with you on one thing though, like I said before, it is a good way to get those annoying wall lamers. As with everything, looping once in a while for getting wall lamers or just refilling behind a wall but getting back out to fight... no problem. Constantly looping is a sure sign of n00bness though, which could in fact result in a kick on most servers I know.

Similar use of graphics, similar use of spelling and grammar, "light" only really started posting since XeonTeam left, he has some technical knowledge from what I've seen so far, he was the word "tek" in his avatar, and the name isn't very imaginative.

XeonTeam registered here January 2005, so did this dude. The register dates are 9 days apart.

And as for the i.p. difference, we all know he has alot of technical know-how so I wouldn't doubt he knows how to change his i.p. address.

A coincidence, I have never heard of XeonTeam, nor am I him/her. (I thought you meant a collective group until I re-read your post).

This avatar was made for me by a very talented photoshop user called l4thal. I should put the sig up to match it too.

I hope Xeon had good spelling/grammar, because I'd hate to think I type badly

I do know how to change my IP, but that won't change my *ubs.qsi.net.nz, I'd have to change ISP's for that. (Unless I proxied)

Old user TEKNIK = XeonTeam, hence the tek similarity. And whenever somebody registers multiple names, they don't bother thinking of imaginative names, hence "light".

As for the spelling and grammar, it's very good for the most part but not perfect, the same with XeonTeam.

XeonTeam was (and most likely still is) a cheat maker for renegade, hence the technical know-how.

In my opinion, it's just too many similarites to be one big co-incidence.

Well then you are wrong.

I played on Renegade using the nickname lightaura, and I abbreviated that to light. I wouldn't say light isn't imaginative either.

I had technical know-how way before I started playing on Renegade, and I haven't made any cheats.

I hope you believe in coincidences, because you've got the wrong guy.

(But don't trust me, pop on irc.ltroush.com or irc.fnfall.com and ask around, I have been light/lightaura for at least 2 years now in various Renegade communities, and tek has been my alternate nickname.)
