There is still C4 Commando for HL2 owners who hunger for a C&C mod. At least for now.

Semen, you know you'll never finish it. You made all your workers from the last project on Renegade quit since nobody likes you, and you think that simply showing some models on Source is going to make people think you actually got something done.

Oh wait, I'm sorry, you retextured the game's HUD to pretend you did something else too.

Scott! You know what? I think there's something like that out there already, I think there just might be something like that out there... What was it called, I can't remember the name of it.

Anyone care to help? Oh, right, Renegade Alert.

Really, I'd have thought everyone had heard about it by now in passing at least if not directly by seeing it, playing it, etc.

I'm pretty sure he meant something like that one Red Alert modification that plunked Tiberian Dawn units in, mixed with the Red Alert ones. But that's just me. In any case, there's actually a PKG out there like that as far as I know. I forget what it's called, but it has Apocalypse Tanks and some other Allied and Soviet units in it, plus some stuff from the GDI/Nod series of games and I think a unit or two from Generals. Though I could be wrong about that one.

I was like 95% positive it was him when I saw one of his posts a few days ago, but I kept my mouth shut. Well, it looks like Joseph Collins just made up that whole mess on dA to make a new identity.

Don't bump topics. Another stupid action and you're getting a second warning, OK?
