Ok, heres the first one: <http://www.3bsoftware.com/tproduct/registryrepair/rr14.html>

And heres the second one:
<http://www.wyvernworks.com/>

I have tried them both and they're identical in look and functionality, even they're icons, but they're 2 totally different companys.

Any thoughts on this?

I'd reckon one is a malicious company passing the software off with a rootkit bundled in >_> (just a thought)

Perhaps one licensed the software to the other company?

EDIT: Similar to this, but does anybody notice that these two pictures ARE OF THE EXACT SAME COMPUTER?

I think that the tom's hardware one is the original, it has a better detailed reflection on it. The other blue one has a higher rezolution image though. Hmmmmm.....

I would say that they are both original, and the super desktop belongs to Gigabyte.
