It's more than likely just a way for you to see yourself easier in the end-game listing. The multiple stars are obviously a glitch though.

There were lots and lots of bugs noted in beta testing that weren't fixed.

aren't those all the people who don't have "recruit" status?

And what is "recruit" status, is it based on ladders? Though XWIS doesn't have one I'm guessing it's something your game figures out?

No, AFAIK it depends on how many games you have been in a server.

Well in LE Stars mean real people. So i dont know what all that is about.

For instance, when you have a script zone if StarsOnly is checked then only human players can trip it.

But it doesnt seem to apply to this.

recruit status use to work correctly, It would go away after you played so many games. Now it's stuck on you always, It broke about the time the server listings did.

Recruit status is tied to the ladder system, which no longer works with XWIS.

I do not believe the "recruit status" and the stars are linked.

It's related to players joining or leaving during/at endgame, along with sometimes repeating that "game over" noise occasionally.
