Which one do you prefer and why??

I prefer the 3rd person view because you see more area and its harder for people to sneak up on me.

For the most part, I stick to first person, I've got better aim with it. However, in situations of uncertainty when it comes to corners, hills, or I'm an Engineer unit, I go with 3rd person.

When I wanted to aim more precisely, I found out that first person view is much better. It is also useful when placing mines and/or remotes.
Other than that, third person view all the way.

lol, I played Call of Duty and I was pretty good at it. The fact still remains that you'll never be good if you use first person (unless you originally got good with 3rd person, but that isn't the case for any of you as all of you are bad, and no I don't need to play with you to know so).

What's up with you geeks always making stuff up? It's not like any of you really know what you're talking about, because in reality, you're all bad at this game. Sure, you may not think so as you all play together and don't see anyone better, but that doesn't change anything. I almost always use 3rd person for everything. Especially, sniping. It works great in Hourglass for the tunnels. About the only time I use 1st person is when I need a better shot as a sniper (like around a rock or something).

I use third person all the time except when I'm closing the distance down with a Patch/Mobius and I want the enemy's head to be easier to hit (it's something like 3 times as big in first person when you're at point blank).

Oh yeah, and I always use first person when I'm a Grenadier because the weapon model looks cool. Actually that's the only reason I use the Grenadier in the first place.

First Person- Since the screen is moving with you, it's hard to aim, run, jump, and shoot all at the same time.

3rd person, you can do that all at the same time, plus you can see around corners and see people sneaking up from behind and beside you without turning around.

Dover wrote on Thu, 25 May 2006 11:36Renegade is a TEAM based game, so a 20v20 would prove who the better TEAM player is.

Playing as a team requires everyone on the team to make an effort to play cohesively, and regardless of how good a "team player" you are, all it takes is a couple stupid people out of that 20 to ruin your team's chance of winning.

It annoys me when people start talking bullshit about how I'm not a "team player" if I don't participate in their stupid rushes all the time. What defines a team player, anyway? If a team player is someone who helps the team to win, then often a team player is someone who ignores the idiots on his or her team and attempts to get the necessary points or destroy the necessary building by themselves. If you are trapped in your base and some newb says "FLAMER RUSH EVERYOPN LLOL," are you not a team player if you ignore him?

Perhaps challenging someone to a clan war in place of a 1v1 would be appropriate, if you are interested to see how someone behaves as part of a team. However, unless that person is also calling the clan match, all it would demonstrate would be their ability to be disciplined. 1v1s are the only way to effectively compare individual skill in Renegade. I suppose I shouldn't make assumptions like this, but I imagine you don't like the idea of 1v1s since you have little to no experience playing them. Thusly, (please don't take this personally) you know you wouldn't have much of a chance in one. That's OK, I've been there myself. No one expects you to be born knowing the strategy for playing a 1v1. However, once a player knows how to play a 1v1, it is at least a useful exercise in determining which individual has better ability to use a tank. And after all, a team is only the sum of its individuals.

You're right. I wouldn't have a snowball's chance in hell in a 1v1. I'm a terrible sniper, and I've learned to instinctively panic when I'm alone in rushing or defending. However, I don't think that measures my individual skill in Renegade, since playing renegade (Properly) almost never involves being a 1-man army.

So I suck at 1v1s, and I use 1st person mode, does that make a bad player? I submit that it does not.

No they wouldn't...all of them will rush at the start because getting money for killing buildings will help their egoistical needs and the team as an (unwanted?) sideeffect. Now if the other team is standing still inside a building shooting the floor, they will lose every building at the start of a rushmap and therefore lose the game. Point proven..

UHH WHAT

SINCE WHEN WAS USING FIRST PERSON SOMETHING BAD

"ur bad at ranagada!"

I BOW TO YOUR INTERNET SKILLS LOLZ

MANY TIMES ATTEMPTING TO FIRE AT A TARGET THAT IS MOSTLY HIDDEN BEHIND AN OBJECT WILL CAUSE PROJECTILES TO BE BLOCKED WHEN SHOOTING IN THIRD PERSON

I THOUGHT EVERYONE KNEW THIS BUT I GUESS NOT

FIRST PERSON IS USEFUL IN MANY CIRCUMSTANCES SUCH AS FIRING AT TARGETS THAT ARE BECOMING OBSCURED OR ARE ABOUT TO BE OBSCURED

ANYONE FIRING AT SOMEONE SITTING ON THE BRIDGE OF CITY FLYING, FROM GROUND LEVEL, KNOWS EXACTLY WHAT I MEAN

That's not true. You only can't hit someone if he's only showing the tip of his head to you, but he will probably be in scope if he does that, so you can go in scope as well, switch to 1st person and pop his head.

With 3rd person you just have to aim somewhere over the enemy's head or at the head and you will score a headshot...its so much easier than in 1st person where you actually have to aim for the head for it to count.

Not only that, but you have better sight of your surroundings as well.

Another great thing about 3rd person is that if you wallhug with the V-key, you can target people without exposing yourself and then hug the wall with V and only giving your arm and gun as a target by doing so.

You were only good in the WL days, ACK and a lot has happened since then...I'm not saying your not better than most of the retards here, tho.

lol I don't care if I'm good at Renegade now. I play CS more than anything else and I'd prefer to stay good at that, instead of this game that becomes dead within three years.

Tip of the head, part of the body, doesn't matter. The fact is that you're more accurate in first person because the camera angle screws with targeting. I usually play in third. I only switch to first so I can hit people that are being obscured by geometry or some kind of object.

You're more accurate, but you will hit less. Try hitting the tip of the head unscoped...it's practically impossible in 1st person as well. In every other situation 3rd person will lock on the enemy soldier even if you're not directly aiming at him, which is a major advantage.

..and Pirkel, I wouldn't want to meet retards like you either.

lol? It's not locking on. It's the camera causing the weapon to fire lower than it's really supposed to, yet another Renegade bug. Basically, what you think is locking on would be you aiming at their chest and the projectiles hitting their head. You can be just as accurate, if not more so, if you practice in first person.

Even if it does lock, you're basically advocating assisted aiming, like in the lowest difficulty level in single player.

You're telling me that that first person takes more skill than than third person, which helps my point--Even if you do kill me more often, I'm a better person.

1v1 in a team-based game (Read: Renegade) don't mean a damn thing, except perhaps who's better at 1v1. I'm not claiming to be good at 1v1. I probably suck. I'm good at Renegade.

1v1 can demonstrate who has more skill at Renegade. And while there's more than just ability required to win large games of Renegade (i.e. strategy is necessary too), it's tough to be "good at Renegade" if you don't have any skill.

A setup 1v1 is only for the egoists, it just shows how good you are solo against a specific solo player without any backup.

Not exactly something you'd find in a real game....

Field 1v1 proves how good you are with a tank. And tanks are the most comemeone things to be used in Renegade. Your not going to win the game with a patch or a sydney.

But teamwork is a skill too. to be honest I think that if you put up the best 1v1 Ren players with eachother. That wouldn't mean that they would make the best team.

btw 3dperson ftw. But I like to play in 1st sometimes just because you can see the Gun and for a change.

Exactly. We could rely on our pilots out-flying the enemy pilots, our sniper out-sniping the enemy sniper, etc...those are the individual skills that win games.

I'm not that good at sniping. I haven't mastered the "Sniper's Twitch", so there's little doubt that you'll beat me, but I'll take up the challenge anyway. You know, for the fun of it. 1v1 no basekill 500 snipers only? I might get you once...

My point:

Large games = Require strategy

Small games = Require tactics

1v1s = Require "Skill", I guess?

Renegade, while an FPS, is still a C&C game at its core. It takes Strategy and Tactics to win. Seriously, when have you ever seen 2 solo units duking it out in any other C&C? Renegade is really no different. It's still C&C: Renegade.

Games of "Skill" would be like Counter-Strike, where winning or losing is more or less a matter of shooting straighter. I'll gladly challenge JohnDoe to a 1v1 in Counter-Strike, any day.

Retards...I play mostly on clanwars.cc and nobody uses RG there and if you suspect someone of cheating, you can just test him. Lol, not flaming renguard, but if you think testing is a waste of time, then right now RG is more of one, seeing how easily it can be bypassed and also gives people false hope that someone isn't cheating. I don't see the point of it until the next version.
