Open the emitter in W3D Viewer, then go to the Frame/UCoordinate tab.

If you didn't know already, the emitter texture (e_master01.tga) is a bunch of little textures in a grid formation, so you can have many textures in one and save the hassle of sorting through a lot.

Back to W3D Viewer, now the drop down menu has a few different grid sizes, but for a bubble make the Texture Grid Layout 16x16. Then, double click the little tab on the corner of the dark grey box area, and set the Frame to 7. Oh, and make sure the Rendering Mode option in the General tab is set to Quad Particles, for best results.

Recently I discovered how to do this, and I remember how annoying it was when I couldn't figure out how to change it myself.

Just give up.

but if you insist on making a bubble gun..lol, then you have to learn how to make an emmitter...and try to re-install your motherboard bios to get the w3d viewer to work.

that works but it isn't the right size...
can you just do what bleza said above to the normal flamethrower file...

I WOULD DO IT BUT I CANT AND FOR SOME REASON I CAN OPEN THAT FILE I DOWNLOADED FROM YOU WITH NO ERRORS I TRIED REEXTRACTING THE FILE WITH XCC AND IT STILL DOESN'T WORK WHAT THE HELL!!!!!!
