Subject: Playing Behind the Wheel
Posted by terminator 101 on Mon, 20 Mar 2006 22:58:44 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Quote:Many use gaming as a way to relax after a hard day on the job. Some may even take a temporary timeout at work and play a few minutes of their portable of choice. UK citizen Steve Allcock decided that checking into Grand Theft Auto: Liberty City Stories for the PSP during his shift wouldn't be too bad. There was just one problem--he's a bus driver for Blackburn Transport. According to UK news site Sun Online, passengers reported Allcock after they heard the game's audio coming from the front of the bus. The driver apparently held the PSP between his knees and, according to one passenger, played at stops, traffic lights, and occasionally while driving. Allcock will have plenty of time to play now, as he has been fired from the job.
http://www.gamespot.com/news/6146221.html

Look what the games are turning people into.

Subject: Re: Playing Behind the Wheel
Posted by Kamuix on Fri, 24 Mar 2006 14:52:56 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I can't even see it being worth it at all to play a psp behind the wheel.
Even if you didi'nt get into an accedent the amount of consentration needed to drive would take the fun away from the game your trying to play.

He must have be ubsessed with this game.

Subject: Re: Playing Behind the Wheel
Posted by Herr on Fri, 24 Mar 2006 15:38:23 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

LOL, that goes on the "most stupid things you can do behind wheel" list

Subject: Re: Playing Behind the Wheel
Posted by warranto on Fri, 24 Mar 2006 16:58:46 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

It's the game's fault. We all know it. And it was Grand Theft Auto on top of that. That game was made for devil worshippers after all!