Im making a public apology to those of you whose servers were affected by what I did. Im also apologizing to the players that were affected. Im sorry, I made a horrible mistake and I know that. Most of you wont accept this apology and I do understand why.

An innocent person is being punished for what I did, and I want to try and make it right with atleast him, Im sorry blazinlow for what I did, and Im sorry it has caused you problems as well.

What I did was wrong and hurtfull to alot of people, especially to you blazinlow, we used to be good friends, and you are being punished for something that you had nothing to do with.

Well im very sorry for what I did, and thats what I came here to say, im leaving Renegade, its been good knowing all of you, and once again I am sorry.

What a bunch of fucking dickheads. This guy fucked up, he admitted it and he is apologizing for it. Then all you all can do is spit in his face and tell him to fuck off. No wonder why this community is viewed as shitty as it is. Everyone deserves a second chance, I bet everyone here has been given a second chance at something in their life. If he were to do it again, then you can go about being an asshole to him. Until then, try to not be a total dick.

I agree, to apologise is good. I as well believe people need a second chance. BUT it's the fact that he did it in the first place that makes everyone mad i feel.

People pay out of there own pocket for servers, and i would as well feel the same way about people like that trying to bring them down.

Not only that, but let's face it- the Ren community isn't getting any bigger. At best, whatever handful of newbies come in from time to time offset the loss of veteran players.

You don't mess up peoples' servers because you just fucked up- you do it because you wanted to be an asshole to someone, or multiple someones as it were. What, an "oops, I'm sorry, it won't happen again" is supposed to be enough? Do you actually believe that these people really feel sorry for doing these things on the internet, where their real identity may never be known, and there is little risk that anyone would actually come after them- even if it was public knowledge?

"Oops, sorry" is for the times you do something like shutting down a server when you're losing the round, or pissing off your team for the whole game by blocking the harvy, or other dumb shit like that. Crashing servers, cheating, and so forth...that's all three strikes as far as I'm concerned. Folks who do that shit are a cancer on the whole community. They are no loss if they disappear forever- I'd go so far as to say that we're all better off with them gone, no matter how sorry they claim to feel. If they did it once, they might be driven to do it again for similar reasons- and they've proven that they have the ability.

Here's a poser for you: how many players does the community lose every time one of these numbskulls decides that the rules shouldn't apply to them? How many honest players and server operators are driven off to other games by the mass of script-kiddies and 1337 haxX0r-wannabes that fuck everyone over just for kicks?

No sympathy here. None at all.

The real question still doesn't seem to have been answered unless I am really missing something, why? - was it really just a half assed attempt to get more traffic? surely continuing to hand out mod positions and hosting a decent server should be enough - our servers are rarely empty and we havn't needed to do anything other than be a friendly community to keep people playing.

one think i have to say is this:

what he did was wrong BUT what he did also opens your eyes to how easy it is to do that sort of stuff, heck i could create a program that could shutdown a server in a matter of minits if they didn't have some sort of udp flood protection. if no-one has learned that you NEED a firwall to stop this happening than you are stupid.

another way to stop this is simply to change the servers default port and block all of the others so no one would know what port it uses.

and he didn't steal from anybody as far as i know, the person was just scammed into giving their money.

and one last thing is: it may piss you off if this happens but the worst (in my case) that could happen is your computer/server computer crashes in which case you just restart.

i know {wg}sm0ke and he is a good guy i am even joining the clan but this doesn't mean i will give him money. i am not as stupid as other poeple have been. all the clan members are nice and frendly.

all humans in this world deserve a second chance, give him that second chance. i have and i have found out that he is not as bad as you think he is.

yes i am sure,

a udp flood is when you send a massive amount of packets over the UDP protocol.

i dont know how he stole money.

andy, you have never talked to the clan members. how could you say somthing like that, you don't even know anything about them.

the WG clan is a place where somthing i do is actully apreciated.

That will not stop anything.

In order for your Renegade client to connect t o the server it needs to know the port, and if it knows the port then you do as well.

Fuck off, even if somebody fails to protect themselves properly it doesn't give ANYONE the right to attack somebody else's server.

no you don't and no he isn't, "all"?? you mean like the three people he has just recruited after the entire clan "left" by which I mean were forced to drop the name as sm0ke had control of the forums & urls

Don't call me stupid when I handed my money over to {WG} I had no idea it would be going to Schultz and it wasn't until after I had paid that I realised sm0ke was infact schultz.

The sad thing is, I saw your name on the {WG} forums, which is one of the main reasons (along with Atomic) that I was prompted to inform people of his history - I wonder how long it will take until he fucks you over.

You are an IDIOT. There's nothing else I can say. Seriously, this guy is a con. He knows what the fuck he's doing. Do you not think he's going to be nice and do little things here and there for you, so he can sucker you into something big where he benefits? I mean, seriously, wake up. People are greedy. People are evil. To trust someone like that who has been given several chances by so many people ans screwing them over so many times... it's obvious he's not going to change.

this guy who posted this has (IMO) succeeded in what he wanted to do by opening up this topic, which is to annoy people within the renegade community and cause arguments.

from what i have read he is doing, he basically hacked, which, i think, is against the laws in most countries, and isn't just morally wrong, but could land the asshole in jail.

Could? If you have enough information on him and a paper trail of said fraud, it WILL land him in jail. At least, in court, where he'd be found guilty (hopefully).

Paypal don't care - it's not a tangible item so they can use their small print to avoid returning the money. I am not going to even waste time thinking about going to the police over $38 that someone stole from me who is in a different country - If I had lost over $1000 as zer0bs have done, I wouldn't be having this discussion with you lot, should anyone wish to take things further I would happily provide whatever evidence I can to support their case.

True, in principle, but if there are enough people from enough places (I don't know the scope of this), I'm sure it gets kicked up to a more "serious" thing. Just make sure you approach the police, feds, whoever with more than just "someone did something bad to me online!"

I don't know why Zer0BS didn't try harder to get their money back. There's no justifying taking that much money from someone.
