Rube Goldberg machines. I always enjoy watching cleverly engineered ones do their thing.

I totally had The Incredible Machine on my old computer. But I could never make anything with it, certainly not this.

The Incredible Machine was an awesome game. To anyone who hasn't played it, go download the sequel to it from an abandonware site. It's worth it.

Those machines in the movie were awesome, but I found myself turning off my speakers because the show's jingle and music were incredibly annoying.

Wow, thanks that was great. I agree, it needs to be edited. The music and endless barrage of "I'm Bock o rot sittin" was to much. Plus it has a simple one I could make at the end. Need to save the best for last. I did enjoy the guy singing "A dig o suck a cup of shit yo knee shit yo knee shit yo knee, dig o suck a cup of shit yo knee, shit yo knee.

I agree with this thread's title!!

I've just seen one of these on daily planet (discovery channel) the other day.

That music gets really annoying after while, I wish they did not use any music at all.
Other than that, those videos are incredible. It must take hours to do one of those patterns that take less than a minute to finish.

It was great, it shows what time, careful planing, and determination can achieve. Thanks for the link.
