Okay, your profile says that you're 20. You're 1 month older than I am, according to your profile, so act like it. Type coherently.

What exactly were you expecting in response to this post?

Maybe if you thought about what you are typing and it actaully made some sense then you might get a different response.

A few tips on how to not look like an idiot:

1: Don't blatantly rip off a popular... er, anything. At least be a little inventive.

2: Make sure people know what you're talking about. Who is Kamuix, what server are you talking about, and why should we care?

3: Try and write like you actually have some command of the English language. Assuming you want people to actually understand you, instead of just assuming you're an illiterate moron...

4: Don't tell us the obvious (who doesn't know about Google?) and don't NOT tell us what to do with it. (what, pray tell, does Google have to do with this?) I went to Google. And I saw... a search bar. Whee. And now what? Waffles? Where I can buy some more socks? Travel information?

Why not just ask for it back, I'm sure he will return it.

I agree, <http://www.google.com> is a helpful site.
