What do you mean you have them in your Hard drive? Do you mean you have image files of them mounted to virtual drives? Some more information would help us figure out what's wrong.

I've had this problem before, usually its because your CD had too many smudge marks on it. In my cases anyway. When that error comes up, take out you're CD and wash it with water than dry it and put it back into the CDrom and hit retry.

That has always worked for me, hope it helps

And if you are using a CD image be aware that cd images are not always that good, and you should always use the original CD's for installation.
