Are you sure your using the right password? If it says password invalid, then your password is wrong... sorry but it seems fairly straightforward to me..

Make sure you have caps lock turned OFF when you type in your password (and maybe try with it turned on, incase you registered with it turned on). AFAIK xwis passwords are case sensitive.

As for strike-team.net, the website appears to be offline at the moment. Try again in a few hours

Try with a different login and password. When Xwis took WOL over, all nicks were reset. The good thing is that you register a new nickname by simply logging in with it. First time you login with it, it registers it.

My guess is that you have been away for a long time and someone else registered your nick since the takeover. So try using a different nick (one that's not taken by another player) and see if it works.

gozy, we talked on msn last night and I got him online already he has been away from renegade for 2 years, so his old WOL account had been taken by someone else on XWIS
