Is it possible to have topics created by people on your ignore list filtered like their posts?

I just don't look at the author normally and waste my time opening a topic only to see it's by someone i've already blocked, so i'm not interested.

Am I the only one?

Seems silly to me, especially considering the number of threads that go way off topic - it could turn in to something useful/interesting/funny, regardless of who started the topic.

I'm sure it'd be a lot easier for you to actually look at the author before you enter rather than have Crimson implement a useless mod.

I can't implement mods... I am not the developer of this software. You can make suggestions for the software at <http://fudforum.org/> -- the core developer is very responsive and you'll usually get a response in 24 hours or less.
