IS there any possible way to change the key used for strafing in vehicles(currently its left control..)? Because I actually use the arrow keys, so I can't really reach all the way across the keyboard to the left control, and for some reason right control doesn't work either..

Interesting question, I couldn't see it in the options.

One way would be to use a program called KeyTweak to re-map the CTRL button to a different button, but that would affect Windows too.

I'm fairly sure that you can't change it through any available means at the moment. However, how is it that that your strafe buttons appear to be control? I have to hold down Alt+A/D to strafe left and right.

Not infantry strafe, but flying vehicle strafe. Flying vehicle strafe is bound to Ctrl automatically, and I haven't found anywhere to change it either. It's kinda like Q, only this was actually documented in the patch notes.

I was talking about flying vehicles. Where did you get infantry from?

I think they didn't add that option, cuz making flying vehiles enabled was enough effort for this game...

Well, they added the ability for them to strafe so I was hoping there would be a way to change the key that lets you do it.
