As I said before, try using a raster layer at 50\% and then overlay your camo patterns on the vehicles you want to skin. They come out much better that way.

Why would having the raster layer at 50\% then overlaying it give me a better camo..... if it is at 50\% I have to enlarge it which just makes the skin look blockier.....

No, 50\% translucency. It keeps the vehicle's details instead of totally overwriting them. That gives it more of a realistic look.

ACK is right... make em a bit translucent and then you will still be able to see the detail on the vehicles... and ill be honest those skins dont look good to me espically the mines... looks so wierd.sry if i was rude
