I constantly get the message:

Error!Renguard is unable to initialize service!

Or something like that text. I tried all things on this site, but they won't work. Any other renguard fix?

I'm sure I read the answer to this in a topic not long ago. I think it was go to start -> run -> type there: "start service svkp.sys"

but ain't 100 % sure

Start Run

services.msc

look for SVKP in there

A slight alternative to this is that SVKP device is present on your machine but the other bits are missing.

Uninstall Renguard and go into Device Manager. Ensure that you have ticked "show hidden devices". Expand every section (I can't remember which one it lives in). Find SVKP and right click it then uninstall. Reboot, then reinstall Renguard.

Why would SVKP be on the device manager? It's software, not hardware....

I'm not too familiar with the mechanism for how SVKP works, but I would presume that SVKP.dll acts as a driver?

Most likely, there are tons of other software drivers that show up in Devmgmt if you Show Hidden Items.
