Hi everyone.

Now that my exams are over I am building a website to house as much of HTGunnys work as I can find, so the community can enjoy it and so it won't get lost.

I have the design pretty complete (a slightly modified template which I will be doing more work on), but what I'm lacking is the heart of this project, Gunnys work.

I would really appreciate it if anyone would be willing to upload any of her work they have to these forums, or email it to lightsphere at gmail dot com.

I would also appreciate it if people re-post this or link to this on their respective forums, I simply don't have the time to register for all of them and post this.

Why is the "about" part in latin? I'll settle down to translate it if I must...

Lorum Ipsum is text web designers use to check their design. It's in latin so people don't read it, but look more at how it displays and lays itself out.
