There was a mention of post process shaders inside the scripts 3.0 change-log, but marked as WIP. Much work has been put into the area since then, and they aren't WIP anymore. They will be in scripts 3.0 and rather than just endlessly talking, how about just viewing these pictures?

Yes.

This

is ingame!

Now I bet many of you are saying "Oooh, that's pretty, but how can we be sure that is really ingame?" The answer to that is simple.

Very simple, infact.

There are plenty more pictures where those came from, just take a look in here.

It looks like this improves how the lighting looks:

But it also could be that I never paid much attention to Renegade's lighting.

Yeah, great job...

...just make sure you don't max out the bloom to the sky and everything else and make it look waaay unrealistic, like a lot of new games do today.

Fucking hell... My eyes!

I guess scripts.dll is restricted to only adding post-processing effects like bloom and such?

They won't. It's just a little demonstration.
