Warranto, why the fuck did you lock my last thread? I asked a sincere question and didn't break any rules. Stop being gestapo and let me speak my mind.

Look at all the topics that have been locked recently. Now go through each of them individually and notice how no one broke any forum rules (meanwhile the person who creates the cheats goes un-banned). What kind of backwards logic are the forum staff using?

There are issues that need to be resolved and this shit is making it a lot worse by the day.

No one has to break a rule for a thread to be locked. The thread was locked because the topic WILL BE DROPPED. It was going nowhere, there was nothing further to discuss, no one was going to get the answers they desired (from either side of the argument) and as such the topic is to be put behind us and we are to move on.

Besides, breaking a forum rule usually results in disciplinary action, not the thread being locked.
