before you question the fact i could be lieing, you need to make ure you know that facts. there is a topic called "Renhawk a second public beta".

of course, you can't do anything with it. because, to can't create the log files; but still, it was downloadable.

He's right, any kind of live game viewer will be abused. It needs to have a lengthy delay in it.

Of course it might be abused. But tell me where would they find out the custom port of the viewer, how would they get the password for it (if it applies) and where would they get the download for it?

Nonetheless, how would they know the server is even running it?

You can program it to use a special port and a password, smartass. I don't think help-linux is making his app in flash.

although, flash was a much better way to go. i just wish i knew actionscript. yeah, mine is in c++.

also, before jumping to conclusions about it being abused, i suggest you wait till you see a feature list. i already know people will try to abuse it.

if your really concerned. the reason i put the server into Sbot (if you have been watching the thread you should knew that). is because i can check for ip addresses, to make sure people arnt in game as well as watching Seye. the connection will be secure, so packet catchers wont work. and there will be a delay, as stated in the thread.

The only thing with it being better in flash is that people don't have to download and run it manually. IE they just visit a webpage to see the game. psu, i suggest you look up the meaning of "Ignorent" . Also, if you want to make a client yourself, more power to you; go ahead and do it. im sure people that use it will make their own mind up as to which will be better. Just to clear something up for you psu, you still have to download a flash app to see it. otherwise, how would your computer know what to run? don't question someones knowlage if you hardly know them. Just you have a skill in a certain area doesn't mean you are suddenly bigger than them.

Hey man, I didnt say anything about any one knowing anything, People started attacking me, So im going bitch them out. I wasnt talking about them or to them, & dont expect them to fuck with me, but since they choose to anyway.. I will attack them back. Yes you are correct. Flash cannot run its applications on the internet. It downloads everything to run. But do the users know that? 90 % of them dont. Do the users care? And most of all do the users want the computer to download the program descreetly or do the users want to download it themselves & have to enter passwords, IPs, & port numbers. Im not saying theres anything wrong with the way your doing it.

You started to say shit about Seye. That = you started am I correct?

Next up, where does it say n00bs attacking you with flames, I believe that attack is legitimate, and has nothing to do with RenHawk and/or Seye.

I have been attack by a flamer by noobs plenty of times. And since Seye never came out as a public release, and RenHawk isn't live, how would they have the advantage?

You make no sense.

Well that doesnt mean you can take it out on me just because you got flamed. -- If it was live, You could know where every one was, what they had, & get an advantage. If you didnt figure this out by know, just wait till its out & you start getting complaints.

In order for the client to display anything the server has to connect to it, so a custom port and a password will prevent anyone who doesn't know them from getting at "live" view, I'm sure there'll be a serverside option to prevent "live" viewing, as well as being able to list the clients, thus allowing moderators to see who is connected. Etc etc.

Simply delaying the view for a public viewer would solve the abusiveness and is a tested tactic for other games (for example GW does this). The problem is storing the imagery.

Yes but people will start using live viewer as an excuse. They will say you must be using the live viewer. You cant prove that your not using it anymore, For me the host. How do you tell a person / n00b that your not using the live viewer?

I feel its better just to not have a live viewer.... I think it will cause very many problems, more or less just an excuse for people to use to fight the mods/host.

its very very easy. if you were watching the Sbot thread you will see that you can see the IPs of all the people connected with Seye. you then check your server to see if anyone is in game. although Sbot will automaticly kick people from Seye if they are in game. a delay is whats needed. and if you don't want people to see the game going on in your server, don't install a game viewer host well it depends.

the server must have some sort of mod so that the live veiwer can connect to it and start reciving data. unless the live viewer is on the same computer / server the FDS is on. but even then, SSAOW is a mod. this mod would have to be a server for the veiwers to connect to, programaticly you can get the ip of the people connected. this can be bypassed though, with a proxy or a diffrent internet connection. like i said before, if you don't want people connecting to your server and viewing the game; then don't install the viewer server.

i couldn't care less what the host is doing to their own server. people would know, the would see that everytime an SBH is in your base or on the field you would catch them.

like i said before the Seye would kick you anyway. weather your the host or not.

if you mean that you want to tell them your not using the veiwer. when your not ingame, you can't.
