Hmm, Windows firewall maybe? It's very sneaky.

At one stage I ran 2, and 3 Anti-Virus just for the fun of it.

On topic: do you use a router or USB modem thing? They often have firewalls in them, and crap ones *cough*Speedtouch*cough* block things.

Off Topic: Nope, that was part of the challenge. The trick is to have one as your primary, which resides in memory and monitors the system and the other two scheduled to run scans at different times. (They can run at the same time, but then they might both find the same virus and one will remove it before the other does). Plus you can't use Norton, it kills all.
