When the flood protection is triggered, you can go back to last page but all text you entered is gone. That's highly annoying, most forums keep the text there. Can this be solved?

I think that depends on your browser

Must be a combo then, it works on PHPbb forums.

It's your browser. But, you shouldn't use back. You should just wait for flood timeout and press refresh, then re-submit the POST data.

Thats why (at least when making large posts with info etc) i always use notepad, then copy and submit it. Then if submitting fux up you still have the text in notepad

Same. I use Firefox.

It happens both on my Iexplorer at work (version 6 FTW!) and firefox 2 at home. And as said, it works on other websites.

But i'll just take zunnie's advice (which I already did for big posts). I'll copy-paste every post I write ;o.

Hint: In firefox press refresh instead of back and when it asks you to resubmit POST data hit yes it will submit your post again

Tried that, didn't work.
