Ok, so a few days ago i started to notice my language bar appeared in akward places instead of the far right area.

now whenever i open a window, two of the thingies pop up and i have no room, and i hate clutter. Does anybody know how to fix this???

Right mouseclick the toolbar and fool around a bit in the toolbar menu.

Right click the toolbar in an area with no icons, go to the Toolbars submenu and untick Language Bar

Then its not the language bar causing the problem, seems to me like part of windows might be corrupted, or you have some spyware or virus which could cause it

I did both a virus and spyware scan, and it's still like this =(
Any more suggestions?

Turn the monitor off.

To reinstall windows XP you can usually hit F10 (or F11) during start up.

Try killing ctfmon.exe if it is running, then try disabling the language bar.

No one ever wants to reinstall an operating system. If it comes down to it and he wants the problem fixed, though, he will have to either repair his Windows installation or reinstall.

I can name times where I wish I could have reinstalled my operating system.
