I'm giving away some webspace to anyone who needs some.

there are no ads, and there is plenty of disk space and bandwidth, I'm just trying to use some of it up

Once approved, whoever I give it to will have access to upload whatever they want and install whatever they want.

I will also supply mysql databases and subdomains as needed.

I only have 3 slots available, so whoever wants it better speak up quick.

Also, if I find ANYTHING illegal, ANYTHING, your account will be deleted.

anyhoo, if you want it, post what it is your going to do with it and such and I shall talk to you.

How fast is it? Roleplay 2 could use another host for the map.

Well, I do need a place to put video stuff on, but those files can be a little big and if enough people download them it would hog your bandwidth a ton. Unless you have enough bandwidth to support that.

I didn't forget. I still use it, but usually for distributing small/moderate size things to friends. I have no idea what your bandwidth limit is and I don't want to use it all up.

I use GoDaddy too for my servers - £3.50 is pretty good for 100GB space & 1TB bandwidth Shame about the shitty route between GoDaddy and me though. I should be getting ten times the speed.

I'll take a slot if you have any left. Needing someplace to upload some downloads for my community/clan.

Contact on MSN or IRC.

I hosted with Godaddy for a whole 2 days, then dropped them. They have some limitations with their features and are kind new to the webhosting scene. They're a great company (I buy all my domains through them) but I'm not too fond of their webhosting. Then again, nothing beats free. =D

If anyone is in need of some space outside of his offer let me know and I'll hook you up. Just PM me for details. Control panel included.

- * Extremely strict FTP username limitations
- * Case sensitive URL's
- * No www. on sub domains

Other than the above, GoDaddy is awesome.

www is a subdomain, it's just the accepted subdomain for web pages

I know. I just meant that you can't have www. as a subdomain of a subdomain. Such as www.forums.dcomproductions.net is not allowed.

case sensitive url's is the only real bad thing, but im used to it.

not to be rude, but I'd appreciate if you'd make your own thread if you wanna offer up some free webspace. sticking it here just seems to me to be, well, rude.

on another note, I've been hosted by them for almost 3 years with absolutely no problems and really nice features!

not bad for those who CANNOT afford and will NOT pay for a server box
