-"There are 8 members(s), 0 invisible members and 228 guest(s) visiting this board."
That means exactly 95% of Renegade forums' visiters are guests
Find me another forum like that 5% of the visiters are members? That's very hard to believe.
most of the time it's closer to 40%"-

A spiderbot such as GoogleBot or YahooBot will show up for each page it is crawling. That, and they have several different IP addresses they use. Since Renegade Forums get a lot of web traffic, I would presume its just spiderbots.

Can't you have robots.txt tell them to leave, or would that prevent legitimate Google/Archive.org caching? Or are these crawlers the kind that ignore robots.txt?

I'm not sure how efficient it is, but you could always use the NOFOLLOW technique in the Meta Tags.

Though, its a good thing to have Renegade Forums at the top of the listings, so I wouldn't really complain; attracts more people.

Robots.txt works like a charm.

Robots can take a LOT of your bandwith. Might be good to configure your robots.txt to only allows google bot or only allow them to search the index.

Don't rule out the old old members who like to keep up with the remnants of what used to be their most played games... just thought I'd share that I'm sure I'm not the only one who wanted to know what happened to the huge mods and personalities that were never meant to be. Back to the void...

If I am ever in New Jersey I would be happy to say peanut butter to someone. Though I suspect I will get a funny look and nothing more.

Actually, I meant peanut butter as in your nickname. "Love to eat Peanut butter"?
