Did you save the .ldd file to the necessary folder? Is this for an FDS or client? Did you save over the .mix file?

If its a FDS, put the .ldd in your FDS/Data folder, if its for you just hosting a map, put it in your Renegade/Data folder.

Did you copy the single player mix file into the server's data folder? Did you put the LDD and if u had it the (mapname).ddb in there also? Did you add the .ltd?

Hm... you might have added an object that you can't put on serverside, but I don't think that would make you fall through the ground. Are you sure you didn't make a spawn point off the map on accident?

If he change's the .lsd file that will cause the map to crash.

(On MSN)
Quote:Kamuix ;o): And add the .lsd file to your server data folder.
SWNight: Won't that crash the server?
Kamuix ;o): It will on some maps, like M02.

I usually add it if I'm lazy, and if it won't work I'll delete it.

But, I just remembered this, Reborn told me once to take out the .ldd and just use the .isd and mine worked once. Try that.

Indeed.

The only file that ever needs changing is the .ldd file.

You change any of the other's you get a good chance of it crashing.

Leave. Your spamming topics that aren't about that. Make a new topic in the general discussion thread or something.
