Hey guys,

So I have been experimenting with proxies (unsuccessfully) lately.

Just wondering if anyone uses proxies or has any experience with them.

Basicly just using them to get around download limits on site such as rapidshare and megauploads.

Since i like mozilla alot more than IE I have been playing around with the extension from this site with no avail.

Are you talking about Web Proxies or Network Proxies?

Webproxy = www.atunnel.com (new window to search like a new addressbar, will encrypt all urls to a set of letters and numbers which bypass the Network Proxy.)

Network Proxy = Schools, colleges, uni's, workplace etc. (Is used and setup by the network administrators to stop traffic from getting to particular websites (adult material, free games, downloads and so-on).)

I'm talking about web proxies. Browsing the internet using a proxy instead of a direct connect.
