Everytime I try to start Renegade, through Renguard or without it, Renegade will start up, but with no display. What I mean is, the screen will just be completely black, although I can hear the music and noises from the main menu. Renegade is the only game I own that this happens to.

I've been playing Renegade and using Renguard for a fairly long time, two years I think, and this has never happened before. I didn't recently download anything that might alter Renegade itself, the only skin or non-map for the game that I ever downloaded was a green tiberium HUD, but Renegade played normally for like months after adding it, so that can't be the problem. Any ideas?

This usually happens when you install an older scripts version over the newer (3.x) ones. For example: when you install core patch 2 after you installed scripts 3.x.

The solution then is to reinstall scripts 3.x , linky: <http://4camp.net/scripts344.exe>

Maybe this can help you out now as well?

Thanks for your help, Goztow. Everything's fine now.

Lone0001, I did try to use the search, after going through like 10 topics that were unrelated to what I needed help in, I decided to make my own topic.

I prefer to use the search feature first instead of looking through pages of topics that most of the time don't have the specific question I have. Anyways, my question was answered, the thread can be closed. >_>
