Before, I would occasionally have threads that are cut-off on the bottom, so that it stops midway through a post. Recently, most of the threads I visit are like this and I can't reply to anything or click the next page. Anyone know why?

It probably times out its connection to the mysql server.

I've had this before with one of our prominent members, there was no explication to be found at all so we eventually changed webhosts. I doubt Crimson will change webhosts for u, though .
