It wont be great, but it will run it. I have 450mhz that can run it, but I dont use it for on-line play.

thats actually the same specs i had before i upgraded to the 1.7 i have now(except for the gforce4, i have a gforce 3 64meg.) if you run on what you have now you won't be able to turn all the graphics as high as you probably want to and your comp will take a little longer to load. when you upgrade you should be able to turn all the graphics up (i'd wouldn't bump the resolution to crazy high still just to save on fps) and you shouldn't take all that long to load. the amount of time you take to load depends on what type of ram you have. if its rdram (what mine is) then you'll run at 400 bus speed and it will take about 5 seconds at the most. your fps should be around 30 to 45 ingame (i get that on the pits which is usually full.)

No problem, Just tweak in the in-game video settings until it gives you a nice balance in between performance and quality....
