What do I have to do to get bhs.dll options in the options in the menu in the renegade menu area? I use to have it but it is not there anymore. I reinstalled renegade, did the 1037 patch, and applied the core patch, then I ran the Renegade 2.9.2 update. So what do I have to do to get thoes bhs.dll options in the menu?

I do believe it was scripts 3.0 and above that had the BHS Options.

Only scripts. 3.0+ have bhs options, they are just options for visual effect and such like "bloom on/off" and "anti aliasing 1x/2x/3x/4x" and other small things. You could just force your graphics card driver to run renegade with higher anti aliasing. i did that to my game, and my game looks super smooth with only 64mb graphics card on my laptop.

I have windows ME, so what can are the best scripts for me??? I heard that the 3.4.4 scripts only work with xp. How do I force renegade to do the anti lancing thing? I have a 256MB ATI radeon card and I get like 17-24 FPS, that seems kinda low. So what can I do to speed up my card.

You're likely better off buying an XP upgrade though.

With a 56K internet connection?

Save your time, your families time, and your ISP's time, and just buy a copy.

Shouldn't this thread be here Renegade Client ?

I have the most recent scripts installed, both CP1 and CP2 and that BHS.DLL menu does show.

You CAN NOT get Windows legally free. The only way is by either stealing a copy, or torrenting a copy.

I, and other rule abiding people of this forum, are not going to tell you how to do this because 1) It's against the law, and 2) It's against forum rules.

Please go elsewhere...
