Basically, it's a big fucking asteroid passing by us on this 29th of January.

Not that I'm afraid or anything....

Asteroids like this pass by the earth pretty often. We will be fine.

People go ape-shit over stuff like this, even though they'll happily cross a street without looking.

It's no real biggie at all...

...But it might mean Aerosmith will sell a few more albums in the coming days.

I heard it will go past the orbit of the moon, I wonder what happens if it hits the moon.

Well we will get unnaturally frequent Earth quakes. Odd weather patterns.

If it hits the moon, we might lose high-low tide. (or get worse)

Oh yea, and the sky will flash odd colors while it passes.

If Governments were worried, they'd consult scientists. Not people from the Renegade Forums. Don't worry.

I would laugh my ass off if we got smacked by another asteroid while we're all freaking out about this one.

Here's a anti-TU24 disaster vid:

This one seems most convincing to me, honestly.

Some because I don't really want to think that we're all going to die in a few days.

I do.

Do you know how cool that would be? I don't mind dying as long as everyone else in the world dies too.

You see... THIS is why I don't watch Anime, or listen to the music of today.

Eh, this passby will be a non-event. The next pass however, may be a bit more interesting I will probably be dead by then though so good luck with that!

There's a video for it, from Armageddon.
