Wow, so you won a 1v1 on Complex with Nod? How could you even loose except if ped nuke were to be on? Flamers own this map, especially when there's oinly one player to counter you, so u can just pick an entrance that he can't cover.

You must be pretty amazing . Not saying that MrWright is any good at the game but u could at least have taken GDI if u wanted to "proove" something.

Yeah, let's win a 1v1 on complex and then brag about it like complex 1v1's aren't solely based on lucky spawns...

I have no trouble believing mwright is horrible but this says nothing, play him on field.

A low kbps on a 1v1 is totally normal. No action = no data to send = low kbps.

They are playing player hosted server, so it's lag for the other guy. Unless they live close to each other.

okkkkkkkkkkkkkkkkk ekt lmfaooo.

after talking him into finally playing me, I told him to join a cw server, didnt pick the map, and I picked nod manual, assuming he would join the same side to pick a side. He joined as nod (prob only because he didnt notice manual teaming), and before I could even type out "side?" he switched to gdi so I assumed he wanted to play as them, so i played...tho obviously ekt knows this with their extensive cw expereince L!OL @Goku, why you comming out of your hole now and not months ago when I originally asked? Either way, duh, I'd love to make you and your "renegade players" famous on youtube. If anything, 1v1 add me too buddies, im not gonna g33k it up and set a specific time+date if thats what your expecting Imfaooo.

Yep, cuz having a specific time and date OBVIOUSLY is for geeks, and it's VERY orginized. Especially when I NEVER see you on.

Also, yeah, I'd imagine he's pretty cool in real life. Can't say though, because unlike you, I don't really know him in real life. Because obviously, you know, seeing as how you know about his life and everything about him, obviously shows you must be his closest friend in real life.

He denies this, but he during our little "match", he threw multiple C4 on my terminal and it wouldn't let me repair them.

Also, for those of you who say "MWright may not be any good but....". Have you ever even played with me? No. Only Starbuzz, and maybe Cabal have played with me in game a few times. None of you know what I'm like, nor my ability level. I'm not a master, no, but I also have a life, and I can't devote it to a game 24/7. If anyone would like to play me on Jelly server or something, I'll be happy to take up the offer and most likely annihilate you Anyhoo, if for some reason it was lag or something, and he honestly did beat me, then congrats troops, you won fair and square, but I honestly don't think you did.

Once again, i'll remind you I've had that game for 3 years now. It's a good game. (obviously, if

Also, I'm sorry I don't have such a huge ego from playing RENEGADE 24/7. It's called a life. Try it some time.

Yes, you're right, at this very moment, I'm playing rp2. Infact, just earlier, while I was out hanging out with one of my friends, I was still playing rp2, then I realized I was dreaming and playing rp2, but also realized I WASN'T dreaming, because that would imply I'm sleeping, which would also imply I'm not on rp2.

1vs1 matches don't prove anything except the fact that if you are a Nod and use a Flame tank to win you must really suck otherwise.

If you win any other way it doesn't prove anything except that you know how to destroy an empty base.

Seriously, if you want to prove anything at all, than at least do a 2vs2 or more. Or if you REALLY wanna prove your skill do a 1 vs 2 or greater. But if you think 1 vs 1 is worthy of showing "skill" than that is pretty sad.

Not to mention, Nod on a map with no base defenses has so many 1 v. 1 advantages its not even funny. When we began the game, we were on the same team, and instantly moved to Nod, because he knew it would be easier to win that way. I'd love to see him play me as GDI on City with a Moderator so he couldn't CHEAT >.>.....We'd see who would win. Anyhoo, back on topic:

Even if you are Nod on a base-D map, you get owned by ob-walkers, or they just wait for you to leave your base and run out with a mobius + beacon

You can mine and usually the ped is off in such small games. By the time u do anything useful with your mobius and beacon, 3/4 of your base are gone through the flamer.

No, a typical excuse by a n00b would be "YOU CHEATED," I rarely see a n00b use that "excuse."

Besides, this debate really isn't valid, since, logically, skill is based on perception, and opinion based in this topic, and you people are arguing over what skill is.

Also, I haven't played Renegade in quite a long time now. I don't really care if I win or lose a game either, it's a game. Games are for fun.

I disagree. A n00b who uses the "YOU CHEATED" is probably new to the game. A n00b who says "it's just a game" is one who has played the game, never improved, did not grasp the concepts, and is now just a headless snake.

Wow? You're a idiot. I'm telling you people to get over it. To stop taking Renegade so seriously. Honestly!

Also, 1v1 prove your ability to think and act fast and your ability to exploit Renegade's logic to your advantage. Not to mention the other skills needed like pistol skills.

I don't think so.

1 vs 1 AOW matches prove NOTHING.

All it is is a race to see who can destroy an empty base faster. There is no skill involved at all.

There are many different ways a 1v1 AOW match can play out:

1. Both players leave their bases as fast as they can, avoiding one another. They then commence to destroy each other's undefended base. The person who can destroy it faster is victorious.
 2. 1 player will await the other's quick rush and counter them, and then destroy the attacker's base while they have barely enough money to fight back (depending on the scenario)
 3. Both players await the other's quick rush and the game turns into a mine-your-base fest with no attack action until after about 15-20 min.
 4. Lets not forget this one that claims over all. One player clearly gains the advantage of a unit that the defender needs the support of another unit to destroy. (I.E. Flame tank). This one makes 1 vs 1s highly unfair and the "winner" a moron that thinks winning a video game proves that they are Jesus or something. (Also note that this scenario would only happen on given maps. For example if Nod tried to use a Flame tank on City flying, than it would be a whole other story.)

How many 1v1s have you played against good players, and how many of them have you won?

If the answer to the first question is "a lot" and the answer the second question is "at least half" then you are qualified to say whether 1v1s take skill or not. If not, you aren't.

Why is it that Starbuzz has now turned into an incredibly ignorant (and not to mention arrogant) assbat? It's fairly annoying. Well, assuming he's not just pretending to be ignorant and whatnot.

Anyways, 1vs1's DON'T prove anything. Renegade is a game about TEAMPLAY, atleast the AOW part. Now, a match in say, Duel Arena or something (Using normal infantry of course) and setting up proper 1vs1 infantry duels to test who has more "skill" in aiming is a good idea. Same with a vehicle duel and such in a normal map, assuming you don't go killing eachothers base and whatnot. But Renegade is based around teamplay, so saying that a 1vs1 proves everything shows you're an incredibly ignorant cock, and don't deserve to play this game anymore.

Also, saying MWright hasn't played Renegade is another pretty stupid statement to make. He's shown screenshots of him actually being ingame, and while I can't say he's 100% skilled as I've never played him, saying he's the worst player ever is just another ignorant statement.

Easy tiger, you're defeating your own arguments here. First you say 1v1s don't prove anything because Renegade is a team game. Then you say it'd be better if it was just infantry, without tanks or basekill?

Do you see the colossal flaw here? First you say the game is invalid by removing the teamplay aspect, then you say it's MORE valid by removing most of the units and strategies? What the fuck?

Winning a 1v1 AOW just proves you can win a 1v1. Which, as I said, in itself, doesn't matter for shit in like, any other circumstance.

SpoonyYes, indeed. That demonstrates 1v1s don't prove everything. That DOESN'T demonstrate 1v1s don't prove anything. There's an important difference.

I suppose so. It just demonstrates you can win a 1v1, and be able to exploit things that are unpractical in pretty much any other circumstance.

I obviously meant that a 1v1 in an AOW is what doesn't prove everything/anything (Whatever your preferred wording may be). But, an infantry only battle strips away the more "teamplay" kind of thing to it (Although teamplay is always handy), making it ideal for 1v1's. Winning in that can prove you're better with infantry vs infantry then.

SpoonyI've italicised the important part. It's important because it's a straw-man argument. Nobody

I suppose you're right, but my point remains that it doesn't prove much at all other than that you can win the 1v1 in itself. That's like saying "Haha, I can run over the elderly!". Good for you, it doesn't matter for shit.

SpoonyFinally, I'll repeat something very important.

I've played more 1v1's in more specific settings than "run to the enemy's base and see who can kill their base faster". Mostly infantry vs infantry. And yes, I win more than half of them, though I'm sure you're referring to 1vs1's in AOW's, so I suppose that's irrelevant.

it matters because it demonstrates you don't need to rely on your teammates, you have pistol/tank/flying skills, quick thinking, the ability to capitalise on an advantage or overturn a disadvantage... but since you've probably never beaten anyone decent in a 1v1, I don't expect you to know these things.

I haven't played "A lot" but I have played many.

And define what you mean by "good player."

And, from memory, I have only lost like... 1/5th of them... I could be wrong.

I'm telling you, each 1vs1 game I play all I do is avoid my opponent with a strong vehicle, attack his base, plant C4 on a building, use a tank to blow up another building, and possibly lon if the credit amount is over 1000 at game start.

The only reason why I win so many of them is because I can blow up an empty base pretty quickly if left alone...

I do remember 1 game that I lost, but it wasn't a 1 vs 1, it was a 1 vs 2 (I was the 1). The game started out as a 1vs1, but we "agreed" not to fight until more people came. After about 5 min the agreement was off and we started attacking each other... but being that it was on City Flying, me being on Nod, I couldn't destroy his base as easily as I would liked. (I refuse to use the Flame Tank). Anyway, the game went on, and I was winning, then someone joined on his team. Still the game went on and I still was winning... I even held back duel APC rushes. (These guys sucked something awful). Now about 10 min into the game, my apache got stuck. I said in public chat that it got stuck, and he said he would come to destroy it. At that time my mom told me to go put the garbage out... and by the time I came back, no more than 30 seconds later, I was still in my apache and all but the Hand was destroyed.

I lost that game.

& @ star, please explain how "pistol skills" come into play. If you are playing a 1vs1, at least the kind you guys are describing, you at no point should have to use a pistol.

Like I said, and what Cabal said, a 1vs1 wont prove much in any areas that one might find "skillful." Unless you are playing in a death match or possibly an infantry only map.

If you want to prove skill in this teamwork-based game, the only good way to do that is to go up against a team alone!

1vs2, 1vs3, 1vs4....

or proportion it..

2vs6, 4vs16. (Oh man, I have played hundreds upon hundreds of those 4vs games) u6795 wroteSpoony, I'd like to know what the fuck your definition of a 1v1 is.

perfectly simple:

- one player on each side
- standard time limit (i.e. 30 minutes)
- 0 starting credits
- standard rules (i.e. no backwalking, no base to base, common sense stuff basically)
- no retarded modifications (stupid crates, that sort of thing) although the pointsfix would be good those players who are known for being good at 1v1... SS, poison, tunaman, clearshot, myself...

starting with 1000 credits? that's not a proper 1v1.

I'm not at all surprised you lost... lemme make a list of the reasons

- you obviously didn't play the early game properly (agreeing not to attack?)
- you imposed ridiculous restrictions on yourself (choosing not to use a certain vehicle?)
- you got your apache stuck (that's just plain stupidity...) and acted like they had some sort of responsibility to free you you may as well say "winning a team game just proves you can win a team game".

Winning in a team game in a game BUILT for a team game proves you're good at the game.

That's like saying "I CAN PWN U IN WOW SO I BEET U IN HALO". They're completely different games with different styles of play. Saying you're better than someone because you can beat them in a specific scenario is just ignorant.

SpoonyWhat the fuck do you mean by "whatever your preferred wording"? If you are too thick to tell the difference between saying "1v1s don't prove anything" and "1v1s don't prove everything", just stop posting.

I know the difference, but as I said, it doesn't matter because it doesn't prove everything, and also doesn't really prove anything outside of winning a 1v1 itself in a game made for teamplay. So, choose whichever meaning you wish it to be, it ends the same- a 1v1 in Renegade doesn't prove that you're "better" than someone.

Spoonythis is just nonsense...

Explain to me how it's nonsense, please. I like to think that if I can beat someone in equal terms on a map MADE for infantry vs infantry, that I am better than them with infantry.

Spoonyit matters because it demonstrates you don't need to rely on your teammates, you have pistol/tank/flying skills, quick thinking, the ability to capitalise on an advantage or overturn a disadvantage... but since you've probably never beaten anyone decent in a 1v1, I don't expect you to know these things.

I love how you have to try and assume I'm incapable of beating a decent person because I'm saying 1v1's don't prove anything. Way to pull shit out of your ass. Not saying I'm the greatest player ever, but I'm not the worst either.

Anyways, while there ARE maps that require you to think properly in 1v1's, MANY AOW maps have certain advantages that allow you to exploit, that you otherwise couldn't in an AOW. I'd give examples, but that's already been done, so I feel it's unnecisary to.

SpoonySo indeed, you've never played a proper 1v1 and as such, are completely unqualified to act like you have the faintest idea what you're talking about, as if that wasn't already obvious. I'd say I'm quite qualified as I've played Renegade for quite some time now, and play various game modes. I may not be the best, but if that were relevent, then there's only one person who can apperently say what's what, and that's whoever is "the best". So if that's true, everyone here is unqualified to say anything.

What makes me so unqualified, hm? The fact that I'm saying winning in a 1v1 doesn't matter? Especially where troop beat MWright? I'd really like to know, seeing as how you apperently know every aspect about me.

And also, I recall someone saying that just because a Patch can kill a Technician, doesn't make the Patch the best unit in the game because it can beat the otherwise very useful tech. It just means it can beat the Technician. I definitely agree with this statement.

Starbuzz

Then what about 1v1 in a RTS game say C&C Generals just for example? Isn't that a player vs player test of skill? A 1v1 in Renegade is just that! It eliminates teamwork to test the individual and places the burden on him alone.

One more thing. This is another completely ignorant statement. They're DIFFERENT GAMES. If you can't comprehend that, get out. Just get out right now.

Fewer players doesn't make it an entirely different game.

you're not making sense here, sorry. There's a colossal difference between these two statements:
A. "1v1s don't prove everything"
B. "1v1s don't prove anything"

statement A is true, I've never said otherwise.

statement B, however, is just plain false and a lot of people don't know that. I've already explained why.

Cabal8616 wrote on Tue, 04 March 2008 16:24and also doesn't really prove anything outside of winning a 1v1 itself in a game made for teamplay.

I've already proven you wrong about this. I can guarantee you that anyone who is an elite 1v1 player will do just fine in team games. I CAN'T guarantee you that anyone who's good at team games will do well in 1v1.

Cabal8616 wrote on Tue, 04 March 2008 16:24 So, choose whichever meaning you wish it to be, it ends the same- a 1v1 in Renegade doesn't prove that you're "better" than someone. Yet another straw-man argument.

You think you're qualified to say whether 1v1s take skill. You are dead wrong. If you haven't played a lot of 1v1s against good players and you haven't beaten a lot of them, you ARE NOT QUALIFIED.

Cabal8616 wrote on Tue, 04 March 2008 16:24 What makes me so unqualified, hm? The fact that I'm saying winning in a 1v1 doesn't matter?

The 1vs2s where more fun. Cause I kept running around. I hate using tanks when there is no one else there that I'm covering.

I get accused of cheating all the time and I am willing to bet that more than half of the people on this forum who still play Renegade also get accused of cheating a lot. You simply don't see the rest of us making stupid pointless threads about it.

No, I simply don't desire to read your posts, however, I do feel a pressing need to adress your shocking idiocy, may I suggest you stop reading this and go to school?

(I saw this quoted in Sadukar's post, and found it... stupid)

CanadaCDN is actually making a point, I tire of the lack of moderation in this subforum. I feel that some sort of rule regarding "useless" threads should be made. TBH, this is going nowhere. Can this please move to the spam section? That's all it is. I don't need to respond any further to his posts, they don't get to me at all. Clearly, and ironically, it does bother him, else he wouldn't post.

Wow, man, you're a god. You know how many friends he has? CHrist, you even know his habits in real life.

What shirt am I wearing? Being the amazing motherfucker you are that should be a piece of cake.

Seriously though, troop, fuck off. You're missing the entire concept of a video game and failing at everything else along the way. I'm not going to make any biased judgments on what you're like in real life because OH FUCK, I DON'T KNOW YOU IN REAL LIFE. You'd be a lot more of a COOL DUDE if you'd do the same.

Pay attention, people. A cry for "More moderation" won't get rid of troop. It'll just make Gozy split more threads and make life harder for everyone. The cry should be for "Public Ban Polls", where the community can decide to remove members that cause problems repeatedly.

That's not true. If you read the sticky on top of this forum, then you know that this subforum is unmoderated. If you don't want to read bullshit, then you'll have to restrain yourself of coming in here.

That is also why a lot of bullshit, split out of moderated topics, comes here.

This is the place where retards get the chance to act retarded. If they do it in other subforums, their replies will be moved to the silo and/or to this subforum and if they continue doing it they'll get banned (like ferkhat).

There's a few people that have gotten a few warnings, mostly for bullshit in the "general discussion". Renalpha, for instance, is pretty close to getting his access removed.

The rules leave space for a lot of freedom, more than I would allow. But the rules are what they are and it's those rules that us moderators are trying to keep respected.

Now if you have problems with certain persons on these forums breaking the rules, then feel free to PM me about it or to report posts using the report function.

I don't really believe in community polls, and even if I did it's up to Crimson to make them IMO.

Lol? I've had a multiple Christian friends call me a retard for not believing in god. Ironical.

Both sides are equally bad about lambasting each other.

I was considering answering it but you haven't done much in this thread to warrant any intelligent responses

But okay. What I'm trying to say is you don't necessarily have the right to call me a nerd (or anything like that) because I've played Renegade for 345 hours or so when you're coming and posting about it too (and, once again, how you got butthurt playing it.)

Best answer I can summon right now. Dinner time. (At dinner, I carry my laptop downstairs so I can continue playing Rp2 as I eat. That way I'm on Rp2, 24/7. Neat, huh?)

CarrierII wrote on Fri, 14 March 2008 20:53Now, a pascal program to Spam more and more *'s on the screen until some sort of overflow is achieved:

var
  I : integer;
  S : string;
begin
  I := 0;
  Repeat
    Inc(I);
    S := DupeString('*', I);
    Writeln(S);
  Until (False);

end;

I take your pascal and raise you one assembler:

```
__asm
{
  __Label_Start: mov eax, 2Ah; /*
  push eax;
  call dword ptr putchar;
  jmp __Label_Start;
```
