OK,I'm about to be labelled a newb, but i can live with it. I played the demo all last week, and finally got my copy of thegame last night.I got a hotwire into the power plant. Dropped all my remote c4 and timed c4 on the MCT for the enemies power plant.After detonation of all 4 (I thought there were a total of 5 but i counted only 4) C4s. The power plant still had 2 bars of health. Am I missing something?

To find the scientists, first go find the dining room. It's a room with a lot of picnic tables. From there there is a door that leads down to the scientists; you will need a security card to get past.

Where can I find the keycard to get level 3 security clearance to open the door in the basement below the dining room ?I must have killed most NOD forces before this door, blew up the helipad, destroyed all alarm-switches and cameras, but no keycard found yet (I believe it's the red one).Any good ideas ?

I've done the same and had the same result. I think the trick is to let the timed blow first and then hit the remotes. I also ,for good measure, toss some proxies on it so that when pesky engineers come in to heal (or someone to kill me), they end up killing the bldg . /grin

if the bomb is net right on top the MCT you get a lot less damage. if the game is laggy and you are a lil bit out of sync u can miss the MCT

yes... just wait like a second... and i think it helps if you set the 2 remotes first... then the timed like 2 seconds apart... then detonate the remotes... then the timedll finish it off... ive destroyed several buildings doing this... make sure they are right on it... and not on each other!!!

Thanks guys. The problem was that the card only showed up after revisiting th warroom. Guess it's a bug, but I managed to open the doors in the cellar.

Ehem! What is wrong with running around and killing. It proves to be quite entertaining. Then Mendoza tries to judo-kick you, lol
