Please use the search button before you ask questions that has already been answered.

Westwood is no longer here so their websites and links in their games are dead.

To make a account in Renegade or any other xwis supported game, in the login menu, type a username and a 8 letter/number password then click login, if you get a list of servers, this account is now yours!

If you do not get a list of servers, this account is already owned by a other player, so you gotta try again with a new name.

Yes, it is that simple.

Make sure your Renegade is fully updated and everything as well.

Well if they tried it and just saw that and gave up they probly were not that interested in playing in the first place.

You won't be THIS interested in playing Renegade until you've played it. Can we not have EA do something about that?!
