the poor idiots who are in prisons across the world? Some of them are in death row, some are in high security prisons, some are in a more relaxed atmosphere. Some are in brutal prisons with no water, no hygiene, in the heat or cold.

Man, look at all the fun they are missing out on. No TV, no relationships, no Renegade, no internet. Some have only books and magazines to entertain themselves.

Some are luckier and get to watch TV in the mess halls. Pretty sure some are flirting with the lone female prison guard. Some get butt-raped by their homosexual male guards (how sad). Some get abused and tortured by the guards who are making $5 a month in a sh*t country.

So, the misery goes across a broad spectrum. It helps to behave in society and not harm anyone and not break any rules.

And some are in prisons unjustly because they broke some shitty rule in their totalitarian country. And some are in death row and may be innocent...crazy sh*t.

Venting complete.

PS: Was playing Wolfenstein 3D (the original) and I got reminded of the prisoners across the world when I was around the prison cells in the first level. Weird mind sh*t...

You gotta remember some of the people that are in these conditions have probably killed someone and are getting what they deserve, now I know you are gonna say "now what about the innocent ones they don't deserve it", now there I do agree with you they do not deserve it and they are the people you should feel sorry for.

There are plenty of innocent people and not-that-guilty people who are going through defiling experiences in prison.

However I'd agree that for those murderers, child abusers, rapists, etc. are getting what they deserve.

Nobody cares. They were going to die eventually, so why not on death row.

I addressed both the guilty and the innocent prisoners when I said this:

Quote:It helps to behave in society and not harm anyone and not break any rules.

and this:

Quote:And some are in death row and may be innocent.

Mine was an unbiased account of prisoners from all across the world. I feel sorry for the innocent but acknowledge the justification for those who are being punished for breaking the law.

There were prison cells in Wolfenstein 3D? I don't recall such things, but then again I played the game a long time ago.

Are you sure it was not Return To Castle of Wolfenstein? Eve though the game did not show the actual prisoners, the prison cells and the spooky prison sounds were there.

As for real life prisons, goes off to listen to "When you're in prison" by The Offspring

I do agree though, some of them kind of deserve it. Some don't. Hey, the entire world isn't fair though, and that's not just for prison.

lol but true. As for the dogs, one knife stab will take em down plus you can hear them barking like hell when they come to bite your ass.

They are in many levels. The first level, go out your own room, turn right and you see all those cells. Kill the guards on the left first before admiring the cells themselves lol.

A huge improvement if we look a bit backward in time. Chopping your head off made you stop stealing forever. Ideas involving brickwalls and steel are a little bit more shorttimed. I just think that nobody kills them right now and so i'm happy g

Like Brian sings "Always look on the bright side of life"

what i wanna say, think positive... theres so many bad things that you never smile again if you know them all. i know how people butcher animals, i know how my medicine is tested... but it didn't bother me because i can't change it

I think I may have forgotten something. For some reason, I entirely forgot about prisons/punishments in Middle East countries.

Punishments in Saudi Arabia still resemble those from a 1000 years ago. Limbs being amputated, public lashings and public beheadings. And in Iran, you have public hangings for petty crimes (for example: being homosexual). And the Iranian public hangings involve the use of a giant crane that would otherwise be used to haul huge pieces of metal/sheets during building projects.

And let's not forget the ridiculous number of executions made in China each year. Nobody even can guess how many innocent people were put to death. And figure this: the death row in China is the largest contributor to their national pool of organ donors.

funny to hear this from US and A.

"And let's not forget the ridiculous number of executions made in China each year. Nobody even can guess how many innocent people were put to death. And figure this: the death row in China is the largest contributor to their national pool of organ donors. " why should they be innocent? Yes there are some maybe political inspired arrests but this ain't a thing china invents.

That are other Countrys that worked other ways out. Let them do as they pleased as long as they didn't interfere with us. You can'T change it so deal with it. If the people didn't like it there will be a revolution or some other things. World is always changing.

People have more than one eye. Learn from your mistakes, if you make it again, you deserve to be blinded. I think you missed the point of that quote.

By the way, even losing one eye really impedes sight. You're given two for a reason because both work together, not so that if one goes, you still have another.
