Hehe, sniping. Thats just fun. Unless you get popped. I say just keep moving, if you stand still, boink. I like the guys that whine 'cheater', when they continuously get sniped, cause they keep going back to the same spot.

I just hate all snipers, period. They really aren't helping their team too much; snipers rarely contribute to a teams victory.I've seen almost half a team turn into snipers, and after shooting up their enemy, the enemy merely switched to tanks and killed them all.Snipers are almost useless except for scaring people and enhancing ratios. Supposedly ratios don't matter since this is a team game.

(That whole "empty a clip in his head" thought from the first post.) Well, I normally try to clear out any persistent snipers for my team as well. Being a counter-sniper certainly helps your other teammates.Basically, I think snipers have a place just like any other unit, vehicles included. I do agree that a half-sniper team is just asking for a tank rush though.

IMHO -having a few snipers helps --- keeps the engie growth down and lets the tanks roll -and they murder (ramjet) MLRS and Artiebut your right - to many wont help in the long run.But a well placed one in the base helps keep down on the mad rushers....

Yes a team full of snipers will make your team lose, but a team with 1 or 2 exceptionally good snipers can be devastating to the opposing side. Especially the $500 sniper, since its hard to see where the shot came from. A sniper can be an extremely pesky distraction that can cost you time and effort to eliminate.

The sniper is the only way to go in an anti-infantry situation. They do nothing to stop tanks, but humvees and buggys are destroyed in 5-7 shots. The only problem w/ being a sniper is that once you get enough points to buy one, the opposition has taken to tanks. but in a battle of tanks, a sniper can determine the difference of a win, or a loss in the battle.

Ahh... The 12th mission. My most hated mission. At the same time though, it is one of my favorites. I hated how hard it was, but I loved the detail and story put into it! The think with that psycho doctor woman was really cool, and totally unexpected, even after seeing that one guy be turned into a gigantic tiberium monster!Anyway, I try not to flame, but cheats are not needed for this game. Go somewhere else and ask, because very few of us supports cheating.

I personally love being sniper, unless my goal is to be in first place for that match, then I take to the stealth tank and black hand(if nod) or the humvee and engy combo for GDI. Humvee's are the best way to crush massed troops.Back to the topic: Snipers are not useless. Although they do not contribute much to the team's score in the long run, they keep the general infantry population down They are the perfect asset for taking out those pesky engies that are repairing tanks that are attacking your base. When the air units patch comes out, and you can get to the roof of buildings, snipers will be perfect for defending the base from infantry.

ever hear the term "stuck up prude"? This is a forum for talking about Renegade, so telling someone to go elsewhere because you don't agree with them is lame. People are talking all over these boards about "mods" and when "mods" are created for single player, that is way cool. When someone uses the term "cheat" to get the same result (like enabling the Recon Bike for Single Player), all the prudes show up and show their @ss. The original poster did not state what form of "cheat" he wanted. It could have been unlimited ammo, invulnerability, allowing multiple people to coop the single player game, it could have been anything. The next time someone talks about a Mod, insert the word Cheat and see if you are still going to be a prude about how you should feel others should play their own game. PS, I don't know of any actual cheats, but you can get Easter Eggs enabled. Hit F8 to bring up the prompt and type extras fnkqrrm and hit enter. Then when you go into the Vehicle/Infantry selection, hold the Alt key down and new selections will show up. This only works in non ladder games for multiplayer and I think it works in Practice Mode. I don't know of any other easter eggs, but right now a lot of players are developing Mods for Renegade. In a month or so you should see a lot of Mods being passed around. Snipers have an unseen effect on the game most of the time. When you have one or two decent snipers, they can stop infantry invasions from entering your base. Snipers are also good against MLRs and Artillery. I've taken out lightly armoured vehicles before they can become a threat. Snipers are also very good at taking out Engineers repairing vehicles. I love snipers, but I tend to leave that to other people. Snipers get jack for points.

i almost never play sniper cuz i'm not very good at it, but i can tell you that while they may not be the guys storming the enemy's base, they can keep you from losing the game by sniping the engies healing tanks while they move forward. a tanker doesn't like to move into a hard fought tank battle without a friendly engie behind him healing the tank as he moves forward. the bottom line is, if you keep sniping their engies it makes the other team more defensive, especially on maps that have few avenues of approach to your base. then your team can go on the offensive..

A few snipers in a medium to large sized game work wonders. It puts the enemy team on the defensive giving you the run of the battlefield. One thing about MRLS and other such small vehicles. DONT use your sniper ammo against them. If your in a decent hiding spot whip out your pistol and plug away with your unlimited ammo. Against lightly armored units this does do decent damage. And if its heavy armour just take out all its support and let the rest of your team deal with it. And one more thing, the best snipers have their volume CRANKED. Stealth tanks and black hands cant be seen, but oh boy can they be heard. Doesnt work in the middle of a fire-fight, but hey, it helps.

Being a sniper is good fun, especially when a group of people walk out of their base ready for an attack and begin to wonder why their buddies are falling down Snipers are important in a game, when your battling a mammoth tank and the enginer who is repairing him falls silently to the ground, that is the work of a sniper. The only problem, other then falling to the hands of a player who got behind you (what I did to a sniper the first time I played the demo), is LAG, the ultimate enemy to a sniper. To kill what you think is a player only to find that it is a ghost of him and the real player has ducked into a tunnel or gotten past you is VERY annoying.

Did you know that when you die, your view spins around to show you who killed you? Take that few seconds to find the sniper who just capped you, then when you spawn, you can chase him down and empty a clip in his head. =)

Snipers get great points providing they hit good money targets, just like anyone else. If all you ever use a sniper for is killing engines, of course you're not going to get points: it's a free unit you're killing, so you're not really damaging them economically. You're only preventing the repair. If you want points, shoot light vehicles or stuff like Black Hands/Raveshaw/Mobius/Sakura/etc. People always build those, and you can really help your vehicles out by removing Raveshaws and P.I.C. Sydneys.

Some snipers can take down moving targets. I've seen it before. Someone was skip/jump/bobbing back to base and was killed before he made it to safety. There is no real defense against snipers, except to snipe them, or at least blast them away with armor...

I love being a sniper, scares the sh1t out of everyone, but on the other hand Ive had people get mighty p1ssed at me, I killed the same guy like 3 times in a row, and he ran after me with a Med. Tank, thankfully it was on the Under map and I hide behind the rocks, but yet he was persistant in killing me, then a poor NOD basic soldier ran in and lured him away. All in all though, sniping increases your kill record drastically and it screws with MRLS/Artillary and Humvee/Buggy's minds cuz they die mysteriously+op

The first rule of sniping "RELOCATE" the tactic you suggest would be most ineffective against a skilled sniper. A more efficient technique is to become a stealth trooper and work your way around to behind the enemy sniper emplacement and nail him with 3 pistol shots to the head.

Sniping is the best. Quit cring about geting killed every time your in his or her sights. If you were smart you would buy a Hum-vee or a tank or you could just wait until hes out of rounds then take his spot and kill him get 1 more person 1 can guard the other can kill everyone of them. That or just be a baby and leave! Thats what I say.

Um, david, a sniper could take out your humvee, especialy if it is a havoc or a sakura. and a well placed sniper would be in a place inaccessible to a vehicle. also sneaking up with a stealth soldier and placing timed c4 on them is while overdoing it a bit still quite funny to see.[March 16, 2002: Message edited by: Knippamyia]

People keep saying that snipers keep the infantry population low but have you forgotten that you can't actually kill anybody? they just respawn. All you can do is waste their money by taking out expensive characters. Personally I love to be a sniper once in a while. Sometimes you'll just find that little gap to hide in and pick off the enemy. The other day I was on c+c island(heres a quick tip for you all) and I was running forward to help take down a rush. Near your base, just next to the fortress bit(v. good for snipers) there is a v shape in the rocks. I looked through it and my vision was severely blocked. All I could see was gunners head. I nearly died laughing as he turned, saw me and "boink", bye bye.Snipers can be * cool but perhaps WW could make it a little more interesting. Such as, if there were weak points on tanks eg. fuel tank, cannon that you shoot down to take out a shell etc. But would that make it too easy?

Snipers are absolutely NECESSARY against Sidney or Ravashaw swarms. 3-5 Sidney's will annihilate any flame/apc rush, and it is only the snipers that have a chance of controlling the Sidney population.Add to that everything else that has been said in this thread, I don't see how you can say snipers are useless.
