This is now released by Stewie as beta and is a first, indirect, result of the TT-patch development! It allows you to choose a different reticle depending on the weapon you use. READ THE README-file for installing!

I don't know if it would actually help anyone but it sure looks cool .

Edit: update -> new version

Quote Stewie: I added a specific reticle for when you aim at a Purchase Terminal or Vehicle. Customizable in the INI of course. Also, the weapon chart (that appears at the top of the screen when you select a weapon) has customizable colors. Additionally, you can now select specific reticles for each vehicle. And finally, I have optimized the system into only four hooks, instead of about twelve, so there's much less conflicting between their actions.

Yes, it allows you to choose a different reticle per group of tanks and even per tank if you know how to choose the .ini - file.

I've had 2 people (out of my 20 or so beta testers) unable to load up the game when binkw32.dll is replaced. I'm not sure why, some kind of conflict with versions or other mods I'd guess.

Guess you make #3.

PS: You actually cannot change the reticle per Vehicle in the INI file. I plan to change that when I make the full release. For now it's restricted to the Small/Medium/Large Tanks.

Small Tanks include: Humm-vee, MRLS, Buggy, Artillery, Sedan, Pickup, SSML, Recon Bike.

Medium Tanks include: GDI/Nod APC, Light Tank, Chameleon.

Heavy Tanks include: GDI Medium Tank, Mammoth Tank, Flame Tank, Stealth Tank.

I'm not sure which files RR changes, but I know that he overwrites some of my hooks which makes the two incompatible.

I know that when I got my new computer I couldn't start Renegade either. I had the same problem. I just took the easy way out and copied the entire Renegade folder from my old computer though.

Dude, that is insane!

There should definitely be a set standard for defaults for each weapon. Like make a list of all the recitals and have people vote on which weapons they think they would be best suited for.

But I think it would be better that instead of having a reticle for each individual weapon, there should be a reticle for each weapon group (1-0). Like one reticle for the machine gun group, one for the emission group, one for the laser group, one for the explosives group, ect. However, if not, it doesn't matter. This is still really cool.

Just edit the *.INI yourself. The Weapon Presets are pretty easy to figure out. For example: Weapon_Pistol_Player.. obviously the Pistol.

your skills in your aim, not your crosshair.

plus the original reticle is by FAR the best

Unless I give him my source code to put into RR (which I will probably not do--if anyone gets it, it will be StealthEye), the memory addresses we overwrite will conflict and the two will not be compatible. Sorry.

Eh, old reply. Whatever.

To my knowledge it is not possible to change the size of the reticles. I'm not totally familiar with the workings of DDS files in Renegade but I don't know how if it's possible at all.

Anyway, here's a new release with a bunch of new features:

Clicky.

This release may work with Renegade Resurrection. It uses binkw32.dll, though, so I'm not sure. The hooks should not conflict, however.

I'm not fully sure what it is but I know the newer ebon.dll file is where the trouble lies at. Could you maybe run like you did on the beta with the features of the updated one?
