This project has no timetable, no schedule, and no estimated release date even for the BETA?

I'll be surprised if this comes out at all.

We have internal deadlines, however we can not make any public schedules/deadlines/release dates until we are absolutely certain that they will be met.

Wow, you are SO thoughtful.

If you knew anything, you'd know that fan projects always have a release date of "When it's done.". Want to see what happens otherwise? Take a look at Reborn. (My apologies to any Reborn staff reading this, but that is a prime example).

Simply because it doesn't have a release date doesn't mean it's never going to come out.

You also need to consider that the people working on this are NOT being paid and are doing it on their own free will. If this were some company of paid professionals (not that they aren't professional ) then it would have a timed schedule and release, and even moreso a higher production rate. From what we've seen, it's already being done at a fairly fast rate anyway.

I think you should be more grateful that these people are taking their time to do it at all. If you want the fixes faster, make them yourself.
